Police sift through clues

Dead coed's intended driver home sought

By JOHN H. COBB
Of The Press Staff

State Police today continue to sift through clues hoping to discover who was the last person to see pretty 23-year-old Jane L. Mixer of Muskegon, a University of Michigan freshman law student, alive Thursday night. Her body was discovered about 7:30 Friday morning lying on a tombstone in Denton Cemetery. An autopsy later in the day showed that she had been shot twice in the head and reportedly had been strangled.

Miss Mixer's boyfriend, Phil Weitzman, a graduate economics student at the University of Michigan, told police he had visited her Thursday night. At that time she indicated she had made arrangements to ride to her parents home in Muskegon later in the evening.

Police agencies today are trying to find out who replied to Miss Mixer's request on the Student Union bulletin board for a ride to her hometown. Weitzman said Miss Mixer did not tell him who was supposed to drive her home.

Police agencies today are trying to find out who replied to Miss Mixer's request on the Student Union bulletin board for a ride to her hometown. Weitzman said Miss Mixer did not tell him who was supposed to drive her home.

Marilyn Schwartz, a second year law student who resides in the room below Miss Mixer's in the Law Quadrangle, said she heard no noises from the victim's room other than a unanswered telephone.

Miss Schwartz was playing cards with companions until 10 p.m. and remained awake until 1 a.m., she told police.

Described as a "brilliant student", Miss Mixer's clothed body was found lying on her back at the entrance to the cemetery beside a gift wrapped package and a suitcase. The gift, it was thought, was for her mother's birthday.

The girl was reported missing Thursday night after she did not arrive home as expected. Police in Muskegon notified Ann Arbor police and the body was then identified Friday noon.

Miss Vanderlind, one of the six Ypsilanti area residents and students who were in the contest, lives at 504 St. John St. She is an Alpha Xi sorority sister of last year's Miss Ann Arbor, Mary Louise Paxton. Miss Paxton, still an EMU student, spoke and did several songs during the program.

One incident threatened to mar the event as a demonstration by 15 women who were reportedly represented the Women's Liberation League, began chanting slogans as the pageant approached its climax. Objecting to the theory of idealizing the beauty of a woman, they cried: "we are not sex ob-

Kidnaped pet goose

Returned to owner

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — The tame goose chase has ended happily.

A goose kidnaped from its mate outside a Mount Pleasant motel Saturday was found Sunday swimming in the pool at a motel operated by the same chain in Midland, some 25 miles away.

The goose, a white Chinese variety, and its mate wandered freely in the area outside the Mount Pleasant motel, and belongs to Bill Brehm, one of the motel owners.

The mystery of how the goose got transported has not been solved, but an unidentified motorist reportedly took it.

Brehm had been anxious since some goose eggs need tending. Brehm said he didn't know whether the male or female was taken, or whether the remaining goose would sit on the eggs until they hatch.

Schools to stay open

GRAND RAPIDS (AP) — Though some 1,500 Grand Rapids public school teachers struck Friday, school officials were determined to keep classes open today in all but four high schools.

David Post, school board president, said administrators, substitutes and what remains of 1,623 teachers would keep the schools open in the teeth of an announced intention by the teachers union to maintain the boycott.

Post said the school board may ask for a circuit court injunction to bar the work stoppage.

Ford Lake ruling

Called inconsistent

The State Water Resources Commission was attacked today as being "arbitrary and inconsistent" in its refusal to make Ford Lake safe for swimming.

Jerome K. Fulton, executive secretary for the Huron River Watershed Council, said the commission had gone against agreements made with the council in previous conferences on the high standards of inland waters.

William G. Turney, chief engineer for the WRC, said last week that only Belleville Lake in this area would be "protected" for swimming.

Huron River and Ford Lake were to be allowed to remain fit only for "partial body contact," which means that only boating, fishing, hunting and trapping are safe.

"Total body contact" are the commission's words for water that is free enough from pollution to be safe for swimming.

Fulton today argued that bacteria is the difference and that the difference is slight. He said that it should be up to the municipalities, not the state, to decide whether a body of water should be safe for swimming.

Ypsilanti has been accused of discharging pollution into Huron River and Ford Lake. The watershed council has been fighting to upgrade the quality of all impounded waters in this area.

Fulton said that municipalities should be allowed to decide on the condition of their waters and that if they wanted swimming they should provide beaches and other facilities.

Said Fulton: "Just a month ago, after many conversations with the WRC staff, at which time we objected to their plans to recommend a lower protection than our council had suggested. 'We were led to believe that the staff had changed its mind and going to accede to our recommendations. Apparently we were misled.'"

Douglas Cray, council chairman, expressed "great concern" over the WRC action. He said there would be a special session of the council before its April 17 meeting. Fulton said he believed that the WRC set the standards in such a way as to control usage.

"The reason Belleville Lake is protected for full body contact is because there is an existing swimming beach on the lake, while we have no public beaches on our ponds. But we contended that use should be controlled by local governments and not be

Jordan

Changes Leaders

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Prime Minister Bahjat Talhouni resigned with his Cabinet today and Foreign Minister Abdel Moneim Rifai, the veteran pro-Western diplomat, has been asked to form a new government.

The government change comes as King Hussein prepares for a visit early next month to the United States for a meeting with President Nixon and U.N. Secretary-General U Thant. He is expected to take Rifai with him.

Talhouni, 55, has headed the government since October 1967. It was the third time he has been prime minister. His successor has handled Jordan's foreign affairs throughout Talhouni's premiership and previously held several important diplomatic posts. He was Jordan's ambassador in Washington 1954-1957 and later ambassador in London.

Rifai, 52, distinguished for his Arabic poetry as well as his politics, also was Jordan's representative at the United Nations 1959-1965.

No official explanation has been given for Talhouni's resignation, but he recently has complained of poor health and reportedly expressed a wish to quit two months ago.

According to informed sources, Hussein also believes Rifai, with his many connections in the West, may be a better man to put Jordan's case to the United Nations at this critical juncture.

The new prime minister has been among Arab leaders most active in pressing for a political settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict but in a recent interview said it would be unjust to expect the Arab side to make any further concessions.

Rain is welcome relief

The .33-inch of rain that fell on the Ypsilanti area this morning brought out umbrellas, which didn't bother Robert K. Fashbaugh (left) and Roger C. Kaion too much on their way to work. Transfer begins

Of U.S. artillery

To South Viets

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. artillery battalion has begun transferring its 15 howitzers and supporting equipment to a Vietnamese army battalion in the first, unit-by-unit switch of the war, the U.S. Command said today.

It is part of the U.S. effort to upgrade South Vietnamese support units, which is expected to lead to phased withdrawal of American troops from the war.

A spokesman said the current transfer "will not effect the force levels." The U.S. government has set a ceiling of 550,000 American troops in South Vietnam, and there are 540,500 serving now.

"The 6th Battalion, 77th Artillery, is the first in a series of support and service units which will go through the same procedure in the next few months," a command statement said. "Another artillery battalion will be involved. Other units will include transportation, engineer and maintenance units."

About 2,500 troops are involved in this switch.

The 6th Battalion has been attached to the U.S. 9th Infantry Division operating out of Dong Tam in the Mekong Delta, 40 miles southwest of Saigon.

No 6th Battalion soldiers will be going home early because of the transfer. The U.S. Command said about a third of the men will have completed their one-year duty tour when the turnover is completed in three months, and the others will be reassigned to other U.S. units or will serve as advisers to South Vietnamese units.

Peeping

Decision

Stands

Supreme Court
Refuses appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without explanation, the Supreme Court refused today to reconsider a far-reaching decision on eavesdropping.

The Justice Department, in an appeal last Wednesday, had urged the court to prevent defendants in "external security" cases from obtaining bugging files.

The plea, entered by Solicitor General Erwin Griswold, had urged modification of the March 10 decision "in the interest of self-preservation" of the nation.

The plea included an assertion by the government that wire tapping and eavesdropping to obtain foreign intelligence information are exempt from the restraints imposed by the Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The court obviously disagreed, but following tradition did not set forth its reasons for declining to reconsider its ruling. Reconsideration is rarely granted.

Thus the action was not entirely unexpected, although the speed with which the court acted raised some eyebrows.

The 5-3 ruling entitled convicted spies, extortionists and other criminal defendants to determine for themselves whether prosecution stemmed from illegal electronic surveillance from federal agents.

The ruling dealt specifically with the conviction of a Russian chauffeur Igor Ivanov, who was sentenced to 20 years on spy conspiracy charges.

It's legal too:

Some millionaires don't pay tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are two kinds of millionaires in the United States: those who pay federal income taxes and those who don't. In the later group there were 21 last year.

How is it possible, you ask as you reach for your checkbook after a losing bout with Form 1040, to have an income of more than $1 million a year and yet not pay any federal income tax?

The method most favored by untaxed millionaires is to give away things that have grown in value since they were acquired. Stocks, real estate, a share of the donor's business, art objects—all are good for this treatment.

The current value of the gift is deducted from income subject to taxation. So it's quite possible to reduce taxable income to zero.

One return cited in a recent Treasury Department study showed adjusted gross income of $10.8 million, contributions totaling $10.5 million and other deductions of $400,000-plus. No taxable income and hence no tax.

Another taxpayer's adjusted gross income of $4.3 million was erased by $4.5 million deductions, including $4 million in contributions.

Ordinarily, a taxpayer may deduct no more than 30 percent of his income for charitable gifts. But it's not an iron-clad rule.

A special exception allows the claiming of contributions without limit if in 8 of the past 10 years the taxpayer's contributions plus his taxes have added up to 90 percent or more of income.

One aspect of these gifts that bothers those seeking reform of the tax laws is that it is legal for Mr. Rich to make his donations to a foundation run by his family.

And perhaps the contribution to the Rich Foundation a share of Mr. Rich's business. This kind of giving, a Treasury study says drily, "lacks the finality which characterizes a true parting with property."

Congress is thinking of throwing out the unlimited charitable contributions privilege, largely because it figures so often in stories about untaxed millionaires.

Another proposed change would make the untaxed superwealthy an extinct species by imposing a minimum tax on all high-bracket incomes, with no exceptions.

Canada questions ABM stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, still fighting to convince Congress of the need for a missile defense system, faced pointed questions on the matter today from one of the United States' closest allies—Canada.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who is making his first official visit to Washington, has confronted the same sort of critical debate in Parliament that has plagued Nixon over the proposed anti-ballistic missile — ABM — program.

In addition to the ABM discussions, the two days of talks are expected to involve Canada's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and other matters of continental defense.

Trudeau, who reportedly left Ottawa undecided about the ABM situation, was urged earlier in the week by some members of Parliament to try to persuade Nixon from positioning missile defense sites near the Canadian border.

While refusing to do so, Trudeau said, however that "we do not have all the information" on the ABM system to convince him such defenses are necessary.

During a special four-hour debate in Parliament Wednesday, opposition members quizzed Trudeau's government on whether Canada's cities would be endangered by fallout from ABMs.

Trudeau was also quizzed on whether the ABM's would not violate Canadian airspace and to what degree Ottawa had been consulted on the system.

Some questions suggested the decision by the United States to go ahead with the program would heat up the East-West arms race.

The prime minister answered that he will discuss these matters with Nixon and "If we are convinced the ABM system is necessary though regrettable, we shall have to decide whether or not we shall participate in the operation of that system."

Closely related to the ABM question is the matter of continued Canadian military participation in NATO and the North American Air Defense—NORAD—agreement.

Critics of the military alliances charge Canada is too much dominated by the United States by these commitments and should move to a more independent position.

Penalty Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., wonders whether a small airport should suffer a $739 federal penalty for installing a landing approach system without government help.

The senator explained that Lou Ritt, manager of the Antrim County Airport at Bellaire, Mich., complained that the Federal Aviation Administration wanted the $739 as a fee for testing the new system.

Teen-agers back Decency campaign

MIAMI (AP) — A teen-age "Crusade for Decency in Entertainment" which drew 30,000 hand-clapping supporters to the Orange Bowl Stadium Sunday may become a permanent organization.

"We far surpassed our goal and we definitely plan to continue," said Kevin O'Conner, spokesman for the 10-member executive board which organized the rally. "We hope it will grow into something permanent, and we believe it will.

"This was not a protest rally at all. We're not against something; we're for decency. The response was just overwhelming. We raised enough to meet expenses before the rally went on, and have $1,500 left over."

Teen-agers organized the rally after Jim Morrison, lead singer of The Doors, was charged with indecent exposure during a Miami concert March 1. Six warrants have been issued for his arrest.

"There is no question but that Morrison's actions promoted the rally," said the Rev. James Briggs of Notre Dame Academy, a Roman Catholic school in Miami. "We hope it won't be just a flash in the pan. All of us would like to see it take some form of permanent organization, at least countryside. And we hope it goes beyond that."

Father Briggs said two of the original four members of the organizing committee came from Notre Dame Academy, where a discussion was held two days after the controversial concert by The Doors.

The idea caught on and the committee grew to 10 members representing different faiths and schools in the Miami area.

At the rally, the shirt-sleeved crowd sat in warm sunshine while teen-age speakers gave three-minute talks on God, parents, patriotism, brotherhood and sex.

Professional entertainers—including Jackie Gleason, Anita Bryant, and the Rhodes Brothers—donated their services and provided inspirational talks, songs and music.

The crowd included about 15,000 teen-agers and as many adults. Members of the American Legion passed out 20,000 small American flags.

Executive committee members said they received telephone calls and letters from all over the country applauding their move and inquiries from other teen-age groups interested in it.

Detroit Loses first Tax round

LANSING (AP)—Can the city of Detroit collect property taxes from its major industrial firms on equipment owned by the federal government?

That $5 million question now is pending in the state Court of Appeals. Detroit lost round one in the fight when the Burroughs Corp. won a $639,092 circuit court decision, now being appealed.

Heavy industry has paid, under protest, a total of $5 million to the city over the past 15 years.

The companies claim that since the federal government owns the equipment used in government contracts, they cannot be taxed for it by the city.

But the city's position is that the firms possess the equipment and make profits from its use. Burroughs has over $3 million in suits pending against the city from claims dating back to 1959. Suits by other firms date back in 1953.

Some of the other businesses suing the city for recovery of the taxes are Ford Motor Co., Continental Motor Co., Briggs, Willys, Studebaker—Packard, American Motors, Continental Aviation, and the Lyon Corp.

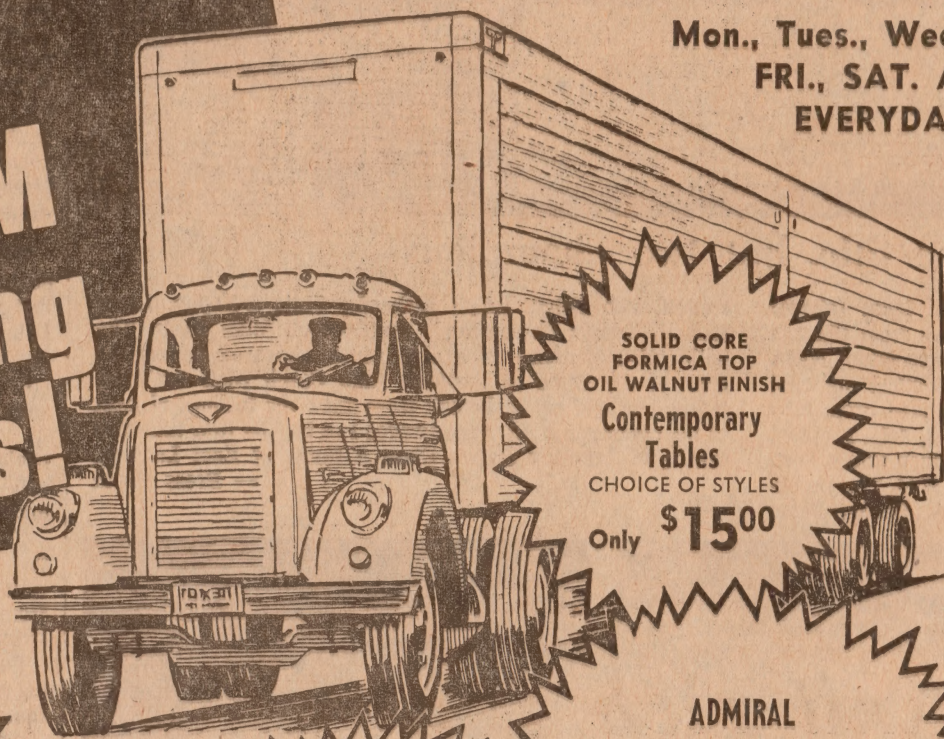

In a similar case involving General Motors against Detroit, the State Supreme Court has held that municipalities may not tax federally-owned equipment.

The U. S. Supreme Court refused to review the 1964 GM decision by the state high court.

New house of science at EMU

Going up on the Eastern Michigan University campus is the Mark Jefferson Science Building. It is named after a noted geographer who served at EMU from 1901 to 1939. Built at a cost of $8,257,000 with state financing, the six-story building will have 180,000 square feet of space and house the departments of chemistry, biology and psychology. The building will not be available until the spring of 1970. EMU sources said, because a strike held up construction. — Press Photo

...And rich get richer

January, Treasury Secretary Joseph W. Barr told Congress many middle-income taxpayers are losing confidence in the fairness of the tax system. His warning of a "taxpayer revolt" is still echoing on Capitol Hill. The new Treasury team is also pledged to a reworking of the tax laws.

If the unlimited charitable contribution rule is the favorite of untaxed millionaires, one of the runners-up would have to be the depreciation rules.

Depreciation is a great vanishing cream for taxable income. You don't have to be a millionaire to use it, but it helps.

Suppose you're a corporation executive poking along at $250,000 a year. Normally, you might figure on paying about $110,000 in income tax.

What you might do instead is borrow $15 million and buy a nice big apartment building. Figure an income from rents of $1 million, reduced by maybe $500,000 for upkeep and loan payments.

So far, you're $500,000 in the black as a landlord, but don't worry about having to pay tax on it. Depreciation will bail you out.

While allowable amounts in succeeding years will be smaller, one accelerated method of figuring depreciation would permit you to claim your $15-million investment depreciated $750,000 the first year.

You get to deduct depreciation from income, even though no actual cash expenditure occurred. So the $500,000 you netted from operating the building becomes instead a paper loss of $250,000 and this cancels out that $250,000 salary. Result: no taxes instead of $110,000.

What makes it even more attractive is that the amount of cash that has passed through your hands—money you could put into other short-run projects—is $750,000. That's more than triple the cash you had to play with back before you became an apartment owner on borrowed capital.

Then there is the oil depletion allowance.

Suppose your wells are producing a before-tax income of $1 million a year. It costs $450,000 to run the operation—deductible expenses—so your net is $550,000.

But the depletion allowance, one of the most controversial tax breaks in the books, permits you to deduct 27½ percent of the gross income from the wells. So off comes $275,000.

You still have another $275,000 in income. You can make it disappear this way: You could spend $375,000 developing some other oil properties. This is deductible expense, so your black ink $275,000 becomes a red ink $100,000.

You are now theoretically $100,000 in the hole. Surprisingly enough, this is a position many of the super-rich aim for, because paper losses are just the thing to shelter other income.

In your case, the $100,000 loss would enable you to have $100,000 in other income—stocks and bonds, for instance—and keep it all.

The net result of your year as a combination oilman and stock market dabbler is that you have paid no tax, and you come away with at least $275,000 clear. And though $1.1 million has passed through your hands, you have had, in the eyes of the law no taxable income.

Session Planned At U-M

ANN ARBOR — The University of Michigan will dedicate its new $2 million Towsley Center for Continuing Medical Education in ceremonies Thursday at 3 p.m. in the new building's Dow Auditorium.

Besides housing the offices of the postgraduate medicine department, the building also contains the U-M Medical Center Alumni Society Office and the editorial rooms of the Medical Center Journal. Courses are also being offered in the 518-seat Dow Auditorium—the largest in the U-M Medical Center—and in the 144-seat Sheldon Lecture Hall and several smaller classrooms.

The 30,000 square foot building is connected by an enclosed walkway to the main University Hospital and the new C.S. Mott Children's Hospital.

The new building was financed by gifts from the Harry A. and Margaret D. Towsley Foundation of Ann Arbor and the Herbert H. and Grace A. Dow Foundation of Midland.

Striking Tenants Get aid

ANN ARBOR — Meeting here with the Tenants' Union yesterday, United Auto Workers representatives gave the organization a $1,000 donation plus a commitment of future assistance in the organization's rent strike operations.

According to Stuart Katz, a member of the Tenants' Union steering committee, Irving Bluestone, assistant to UAW President Walter Reuther, "was quite enthusiastic about the strike" and also offered the union's printing facilities to the Ann Arbor group.

Katz said that no specific plans of further UAW-Tenant's Union cooperation were discussed yesterday but added that Marcellus Ivory, UAW director for the region including Ann Arbor, will be working with the Tenants' Union on a "permanent contact" basis.

In other developments from the six-week-old rent strike, an Ann Arbor woman, in the second of a series of eviction trials, was awarded a $110 rent reduction by an Ann Arbor District Court jury Friday.

Miss Virginia Lewis, who, as participant in the Tenants' Union strike, has withheld two months' rental payments from Arbor Management Co., was instructed by the jury to pay $140 of the $250 rent owed from February and March.

In an earlier eviction trial Thursday, an Ann Arbor District Court jury awarded two other Tenants' Union defendants a $20 reduction in rent.

Ypsi performs well In music festival

Not only Ypsilanti High School's basketballers but musicians, too, were in state competition this weekend.

With 16 entries in the State Solo and Ensemble Festival at Ferndale on Saturday, 11 received the highest rating of first division for excellent performances while 4 received second division ratings and one a third division rating.

A total of 3,000 solo and ensemble performances were presented by state high schools at two sites—Ferndale High School and Waverly High School in Lansing. All of these participants, like the Ypsilanti High School performers, became eligible for this competition by being judged first division winners at the district level solo and ensemble festivals.

Ypsilanti High School students winning first division ratings for solo performances were: Sally Wolford, flute; Jean Snare, piano; Mike Sayers, bassoon; Ingrid Sponberg, oboe; Alice Lamimau, violin; and John Cannon, violin and piano.

First division ratings for ensemble performances were awarded to: Norma Gillis and Kari Kortesoja—clarinet duet; Al Lennert, Keith Harris, Jon Barfield, and Steve Lindner—saxophone quartet; Brent Prain, Pete Kingston and Keith Angelocci—cornet trio; and Pat Frye, Marsha Bonds, Louise Magoon and Gary Hellem—string quartet.

Receiving second division ratings for solo performance were: Dennis Pilkington, bass clarinet; Jon Barfield, tenor saxophone; and Marilyn Joslyn, piano. Steve Lindner and Rick Stribley received a second division rating for ensemble performance with their alto saxophone duet.

'Engineer' Into court At Westland

WESTLAND (AP)—Patrick W. Cosgrove, $13,500-per-year street administrator of Dearborn Heights, goes on trial Tuesday on charges of practicing engineering without a license.

Cosgrove formerly was general manager of Tri-County Engineering, Inc., which Dearborn Heights officials said did more than $1 million in business with that neighboring city. He is charged with falsely representing himself as a licensed engineer when investigating a drainage problem for a Westland housewife last year.

Coed attacked, beaten While walking home

A 20-year-old Eastern Michigan University coed was dragged and beaten early Saturday morning in an attack near Ballard Street. The student was treated at Beyer Hospital for a broken nose, cuts and bruises.

Ypsilanti city police said the girl, whose name is being withheld, was brought to the police station at 12:51 a.m. Saturday by a passing motorist she had flagged down at Pearl and Perrin St.

She told police that she had left work at Ding's Pizza at 505 W. Cross St. and was walking home. She noticed a white male following behind her for a distance. He then ran across to the other side of the street and disappeared.

Later, the man, said to be about 30-years-old, jumped out from behind a tree in the 100 block of Ballard and grabbed the girl. He pushed her through some bushes and dragged her through several back yards.

After telling the girl he had a weapon, she offered him money to let her go free, but had not given him any when she fell down and started yelling for help.

At this point in the attack, the man started hitting the girl and told her he would kill her. She told police that somehow she managed to break away and ran to the street where she flagged down a motorist.

Police seize youths After apparent theft

Two Ypsilanti juveniles were taken into custody Friday night by County sheriff's deputies after allegedly breaking into a house at 345 Edison Ave. and stealing some items.

Acting on a tip, deputies started a house-to-house check to find out which home had been entered. During their check, they noticed two young men acting in a suspicious manner.

Upon checking, deputies found that the two, both 15-years-old, had a pillow case containing items taken from the house. Included were two watches, a clock radio, a clock, a microphone, a flashlight and 55 cents in change.

The subjects also were connected with four other burglaries on Merrill Street. They were turned over to their parents pending further action.

Public caught in squeeze

Of high, low interest rates

Boosting of the prime interest rate — the rate banks charge for loans to their customers with the highest credit rating — to 7 per cent by the nation's leading banks is proof that the economy is not in the best possible shape.

Factors responsible for this record interest rate are many and diverse. To say that inflation is the culprit is oversimplification. Inflation is merely the manifestation of many deep-seated maladjustments.

What is plain is that the interest rate cannot continue to rise without bringing on more maladjustments. But perhaps the American people are willing to accept greatly escalated, all-out, day-by-day inflation — with its ruinous impact upon every segment of society — as a way of life.

As a starter, this sort of inflation could make the national debt unmanageable except by the printing of huge amounts of unbacked currency, which could only increase the chaos. Skyrocketing interest rates are a warning signal that cannot be ignored.

By increasing the prime interest rate for the fourth time in less than four months, the banks hope higher interest rates will help ration credit. Tight money and high interest rates are supposedly designed to discourage borrowing and halt or at least slow inflation, but such has not been the case.

In Michigan, meanwhile, the state usury law limits interest rate on mortgages at 7 per cent — which means that money available for lending on mortgages is being sent to other states where it will earn 8, 9 or more per cent interest.

Sen. Bursley's current bill in the State Legislature to hike the interest limit to 9 per cent is aimed at ending this "inequity". That it would possibly do, but at a cost of how many millions of dollars in added interest to the persons building a $12,000 to $20,000 home.

The problem of adequate mortgage money available to John Q. Public is increasing daily. A 29 per cent boost — from 7 to 9 per cent — in the interest rate would alleviate the problem but would leave a lot to be desired by John Q. Public who will, as always, have to pay the final bill.

Spring officially here

Now that the calendar says spring is officially here, there is still cold in the earth everywhere except in the southland, but there is enough blue in the sky and warmth in the sunshine to lift the heart with promise of brighter days ahead.

For the poet, spring is the season for the burgeoning of trees, for "flocking and fledgling and youngling love." More than that, spring is the season of rebirth and renewal.

Everyone knows that when spring comes, summer cannot be far behind, and after the severity of winter few are tempted to spoil the vision of thinking of the days when the lawn mower will have ceased to be a re-welcomed friend and become a demanding tyrant, and those flower beds will sprout weeds that must be slain on hot evenings. Such thoughts are too somber for spring.

That faithful ole forecaster, the Farmer's Almanac, has done it again, meanwhile. In a long-range forecast for March in the Midwest, the booklet predicted "...considerable violence is indicated between the 18th and 23rd." That period covers the severe but brief thundershower Tuesday and the rain and high winds of Thursday.

The forecast also calls for "a cold wet storm" March 27-31 before a non-violent April arrives. The prediction for next month's weather is for slightly above normal temperatures, 3.66 inches of rain and "nothing violent except perhaps during the last week. The bad storms elsewhere would seem to be light here — with perhaps heavy rain between the 5th and 8th."

Mafia loses its immunity

Sentencing of 73 Mafia gangsters by an Italian court to terms ranging up to 27 years was a strong blow against this criminal conspiracy which operates in every corner of the world. Whether it will break the back of the longtime Sicilian headquarters of the Mafia is not clear.

Some of the reputed leaders of the Mafia from Sicily were among those receiving the longest terms. Trial of the mobsters was moved out of Sicily because of fears witnesses could be intimidated against talking on the island.

For decades the Sicilian Mafia has operated with almost total immunity, spreading its tentacles throughout organized crime in every major nation of the world. So strict was the discipline of the syndicate, and so fearsome its power, that informers were few and witnesses almost nonexistent.

Has this changed with the mass Italian convictions? This is one scourge that international cooperation and fearless justice can eliminate, if there is a will.

Soviets see unity

In blown-up rift

With Red China

WASHINGTON — The Kremlin's decision to balloon relatively minor border clashes with the Chinese Communists into an international cause celebre appears to be a desperate new effort to unify the people of Russia and the Soviet bloc.

Dissension and unrest have become so widespread within the Soviet Union and Eastern European satellites that the Russian leaders decided to blow up the "Chinese threat" to use it to tighten control over its restless people.

That's the central finding of an analysis of the latest Sino-Soviet border clashes that CIA director Richard Helms presented in a private briefing to members of Congress.

The government's chief intelligence official stressed that the Soviet leaders' decision to play up the border incidents inside and outside the Soviet Union at this time was far more significant than the actual clashes.

Helms pointed out in recent years that the CIA had confirmed hundreds of similar clashes along the Chinese-Soviet frontier which neither Moscow or Peking had publicized.

"We have known about these clashes for several years," Helms stated. "Several of the border battles involved many more troops than those over islands in the Ussuri River. The provocative question is why all the publicity at this time?"

In answering his own question, Helms linked the Soviet leaders' decision to give wide publicity to the border incidents to the Kremlin's campaign to crack down on unrest in the Soviet Union.

To make his point, Helms pointed out how the Soviet government had organized rallies throughout the country to support the Kremlin's militant anti-Chinese stand and play up the Chinese threat to unite the people and stamp out criticism.

"The Soviets rarely give way to public indignation unless it serves a political purpose," Helms stated. "We believe the purpose is to use the so-called 'Chinese threat' to rally the masses of people in Russia and the Soviet bloc behind the Kremlin leadership."

The depth of the unrest inside the Soviet Union, according to Helms, is clearly indicated by the new purges and mass arrests which have taken place in the past six months.

"The present politburo is more ugly toward intellectuals than Khrushchev ever was," Helms reported.

"There are more intellectuals incarcerated in Soviet prisons today than at any time in the history of the Soviet Union."

"The hard fact is that Communist China in 1969 does not constitute a major military threat to Russia," Helms stated. "Russia's big problem today is keeping control over its own population and those of the Soviet bloc. To do this, the Soviet leaders must either create a threat from without or use force, like they did in Czechoslovakia, to keep their control."

Some of his CIA geopoliticalians, Helms said, speculate that the Russians propagandists also played up the Sino-Soviet border clashes outside of the Soviet Union to cover up continued troop build-up in Eastern Europe.

This belief centers around the theory that the Russian Politburo invented the ominous "Breznev doctrine" of limited sovereignty for communist-run countries as the basis for political pressures, blackmail and new military adventures like Czechoslovakia in Europe.

When questioned about this theory, Helms admitted that the Russians had gradually increased their troops in East Germany, Poland and Hungary since the Czech invasion.

"We cannot be confident that a Soviet Union that invades Czechoslovakia will not use military force to achieve its purpose on other fronts, when it thinks this can be done without running unacceptable risks," Helms stated.

Dear Mr. Morris: My father was a doctor. Just who were his patients? I know that when they were hurt or ailing, they were indeed "patients." But what were they when they were healthy? What did poor old Dad have, unless they were sick?—Jim Darrah, Steilacoom, Washington.

A. You refer, of course, to the fact that "patient" in this sense is derived from the Latin verb "pati," to suffer. However the term has long since come to mean anyone who is under a doctor's care—healthy or ill.

Extra millage 'isn't much'

TO THE EDITOR:

To all concerned parents in the Willow Run School District:

At a PTA meeting in January I asked the question of what would happen if the millage failed to pass Feb. 11. I was not answered at the time... but I took the trouble to find out why. They didn't want to 'brainwash,' as some say, the parents.

I disagreed then, but I knew about half days, buses, loss of teachers, etc. I talked about it with some of these same parents, so how can they really be surprised now? Children are not stupid. They listen and watch not only at school, but at home and at play.

Sure, some of the school officials' ways are not always right, but face the facts. We do not get free teachers or maintenance staff, etc. We pay for them like our parents paid for our education.

Bomb scare explained

TO THE EDITOR:

This is in regard to a letter printed March 20 and entitled "It's time to stand up and say 'no.'" I'm a student at Edmonson Junior High School. I was in swimming period at Willow Run High School March 7 when the first bomb scare was called in. When the

Do you realize for the last five years, you and I have been paying 11 mills to keep our schools going? Find out for yourself from the Township Hall how much your school taxes are and how much they will increase, which isn't very much — only a few dollars a month.

Vote 'no' and let the school go on half days and all the rest, but would it really be to our advantage? No!

Why should we scrap our school system. Let's better it by voting 'yes' as I will do. There is so much said about keeping the school system with the people in the community. How will this be possible if we turn down the millage and watch Willow Run schools dwindle away? Until a better way is found to support our schools, I urge every concerned parent that can to vote 'yes.'

Mrs. Roberta Feldmann

It's tough all over!

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to explain the facts to Elizabeth about the factory worker and taxpayer.

I work in a factory. The pay for a production worker for a 40-hour week is $108 take home, which is only $4 more than your income. One week of every month our take home pay is only $102 because union dues are withheld. Now, please let me know just how much better the factory worker has it!

We do have a chance to work overtime in the summer months, but let me just say this: They don't give us the overtime money, we earn it. We are away from our homes and families six and seven days a week, some working afternoons and midnights, just to get a few more dollars for shift premium. Why should we be penalized because we want a few dollars extra to live on.

You say your husband's salary is $7,500 per year, but he is only in school for nine months, correct? We make between $7,300 and $7,500 for 52 weeks working 40 hours per week. As I said before, to earn any more than that, we must work six and seven days a week.

We are expected to pay all the taxes, millage, support the cities, etc. and still support our families. I do agree, Elizabeth, it's almost impossible.

Weins chosen for council

Viet Cong takes action Against U.S. offensive

SAIGON (AP) — More than 3,000 U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese infantrymen backed by an American armored column are pushing another major counter offensive south of the demilitarized zone.

Operation Maine Crag is aimed at a growing North Vietnamese threat to allied bases along the northern frontier. Marine officers at Da Nang said in the past month patrols have sighted as many as 50 enemy tracked vehicles and trucks carrying war materials toward allied bases. Some were believed to be big artillery guns.

It was the second big American drive announced in the past two days and the third within a week, as the Viet Cong's spring offensive rolled into its fifth week.

Maine Crag was launched March 15 but has been slowed down frequently by bad weather. The U.S. Command did not announce it until today for security reasons.

The Marines said the allied force had killed 43 enemy troops so far and captured two prisoners and 129 rifles. Ten Americans were reported killed and 64 wounded. But the allies' main purpose is to cut North Vietnamese supply lines from Laos into South Vietnam.

Maine Crag is taking place along the Laotian border, about 25 miles south of the western flank of the DMZ and just south of the old Khe Sanh combat base, where U.S. forces held off a North Vietnamese siege for 2½ months last year.

One of the Marines' objective is to cut Highway 926 from Laos into South Vietnam. U.S. patrols have sighted North Vietnamese self-propelled artillery guns along the highway, which leads toward the Marines' Vandegrift combat base, the major allied operations base on the northern frontier.

Field commanders think these big guns could be used to turn Vandegrift base into another Khe Sanh, which was pounded daily with enemy artillery until the siege was lifted. Khe Sanh was later abandoned, a policy of greater mobility was announced, and Vandegrift, 20 miles from the Laotian border and out of range of North Vietnamese artillery inside Laos, became the major Marine combat base along the frontier.

Maj. Gen. Raymond Davis, commander of the 3rd Marine Division, said that Highway 926 was particularly important now because the Marines had cut off other enemy access routes in Operation Dewey Canyon, a two-month drive that has just ended.

Egyptians, Israelis bombard Each other over Suez Canal

By The Associated Press
Egyptian and Israeli guns blazed away across the Suez Canal today after one of the leading Arab guerrilla organizations reported large movements of Israeli troops into the Sinai Desert.

The firing continued through one U.N. call for a cease-fire at 10 a.m. U.N. observers called for another cease-fire at noon, when the Israelis said they stopped shooting. But Israeli army spokesmen said the Egyptians continued firing in several sectors until 12:30 p.m.

Each army accused the other of firing first. They agreed it began at the southern end of the canal then spread north, all the way to El Qantara at the northern end of the Suez Canal.

Israel said it suffered no casualties or damage.

The Israeli army said U.N. observers arranged a cease-fire at midmorning and its troops stopped firing. But the Egyptians continued firing and the Israelis resumed their barrage after half an hour, Tel Aviv said.

Radio Cairo said the Israelis refused to heed the U.N. cease-fire appeal and instead extended their fire northward.

It was the first artillery duel along the canal in six days. Sporadic fighting has been going on across the 103-mile water way for a month. Six Israelis and the Egyptian army chief of staff have been killed and 25 Israelis wounded.

An Israeli army spokesman scoffed today at the report of Israeli troop movements into Sinai made by the Al Fatah guerrilla organization. "We regard all Fatah claims as largely imaginary," he said.

Al Fatah said Israel appeared to be moving almost all its forces on the Jordanian front to the Sinai in what appeared to be "more than just another exercise."

In Jerusalem, an Israeli military court imposed a life sentence on a 17-year-old Arab youth convicted of throwing a hand grenade that wounded 45 praying Jews in Hebron last Oct. 9.

Year may be needed To pull U.S. troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some key U.S. military leaders say it may take a year before substantial numbers of American troops can be withdrawn from Vietnam.

But they stress their judgment is based on military factors and acknowledge agreement at the Paris peace talks or a Nixon Administration decision could start a pullout earlier. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Sunday, "I do not believe that now is the time" to discuss U.S. troop withdrawals.

Laird said this is because the enemy is continuing a "very affirmative and strong offensive" and because mutual troop pullback is a major negotiating issue in Paris.

However, the new Pentagon chief spoke of moving toward "Vietnamizing" the war by modernizing the South Vietnamese forces—ARVN—on "a realistic basis"—meaning at a faster rate than the Johnson Administration's program.

Senior officers said any unilateral withdrawal of U.S. troops will have to be keyed to improved battlefield performance of the South Vietnamese troops, something which involves more than just modernized weapons and equipment.

"We'll know this fall," said one top military leader. "We

Anguillans hold Protest funeral

ANGUILLA (AP) — About 400 Anguillans held a "funeral" Sunday for their Caribbean island, now firmly under the British thumb after 13 months of unrecognized independence.

The demonstrators, mostly women, marched under a broiling sun behind a black coffin that bore the legend: "If Lee don't go, Anguilla is dead." Anthony Lee is the British commissioner appointed to rule Anguilla until the island's fate is decided.

Officials made no effort to interfere with the procession, and there was no violence. It was the third demonstration in three days protesting British occupation of the island.

Anguilla, with a population of 6,000, seceded from a three-island federation with St. Kitts and Nevis 13 months ago. Last Wednesday a few hundred paratroopers, marines and Bobbies invaded the island to reassert British authority.

Although the British have promised to withdraw their paratroopers and marines this week and replace them with engineers, the invasion of Anguilla threatens to have repercussions in Britain's other Caribbean territories.

Labor leader George Walter on the neighboring island of Antigua, where the invasion force embarked, has protested the presence of British troops on his island and says he will make an issue of the Anguilla occupation in Antigua's next elections.

Sirhan's hypnotist recalled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A specialist who has hypnotized Sirhan Bishara Sirhan eight times in an attempt to find out why he killed Robert F. Kennedy was recalled to the stand by the defense today.

Grant Cooper, counsel for the Jordanian-born, 25-year-old Arab, says Sirhan was "out of contact with reality, in a trance in which he had no voluntary control over his will, his judgment, his feelings or his actions" when he fired the fatal shot last

Vietnam conflict Creates surplus Of war weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The large influx of American, Russian and Chinese weapons into Southeast Asia because of the Vietnam war is leading to a vast pool of second-hand but highly usable arms for international trade, according to a prominent defense analyst.

Louis A. Frank, a member of the Stanford Research Institute, says the war will leave in its wake "hundreds of thousands of weapons, ranging from small arms through anti-aircraft guns, tanks, mortars, mines and aircraft" that will be sold as surplus.

Frank, who released his study in a newly published book, "The Arms Trade in International Relations," also said a re-equipping of NATO forces expected in the early 1970s will add even more weapons to the surplus available for purchase.

The only restraints on the sale of these used weapons come from the nation's who owned them originally. Such are far from effective, he indicated.

The armaments are put on the market, Frank said, because it is usually "too costly to repatriate the weapons."

He said the weapons sent to Southeast Asia will find willing buyers not only in South Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and Thailand, but also in neighboring areas such as Singapore and Indonesia.

The author, an economist who specializes in defense analysis with the Strategic Studies Center of the Stanford Research Institute in Washington, gave the following breakdown on some of the largest arms suppliers:

—The United States, the world's largest arms production base with 20,000 companies, sold $11.1 billion worth of new and used military aircraft, missiles and missile systems, ships, armored vehicles, weapons and ammunition from 1962 to 1966. Aircraft sales accounted for 37 per cent of the total. Included were 6,071 Nike Hercules SAMs and 3,323 Sidewinder air-to-air missiles mostly supplied to the forces of NATO, Japan and Nationalist China.

—Soviet Union, the second largest armaments industry in the world, exported between 1949 and 1968 more than 5,000 jet combat aircraft including 1,200 MIG15s, more than 1,100 MIG17 sub-sonic fighter-interceptors to 21 countries.

Communist China received more than 1,000 Foviat jet planes before military aid came to a virtual halt in 1961. Moscow's second biggest customer is Egypt with 750 jet aircraft; Poland received 620, North Korea 465 and East Germany 270 to become the other major recipient.

Since 1950 the Soviets have supplied nearly 550 major type combat vessels to other countries with Poland, the UAR and Indonesia the major recipients.

He was on the witness stand as Sirhan's murder trial went into its 12th week and was recalled for today.

Diamond, 65, is a professor in the schools of medicine, law and criminology at the University of California at Berkeley. Testimony to date has portrayed Sirhan as a Jew-hater and Arab zealot who was so incensed at learning about Kennedy's long standing support of Israel that he became obsessed with the idea of assassinating him.

To retrieve the details from Sirhan's subconscious, Dr. Bernard L. Diamond, a prominent doctor-lawyer-criminologist, hypnotized Sirhan in his jail cell in a series of sessions beginning last December. He was on the witness stand as Sirhan's murder trial went into its 12th week and was recalled for today.

MRS. EUGENE O. BROWN
(The former Miss Rhonda L. Walden)

Miss Walden Becomes bride

Miss Rhonda L. Walden, of 624 Glenwood Blvd., has become the bride of Eugene O. Brown of Clinton.

Miss Walden, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Walden of 624 Glenwood Blvd. and Lee Walden of Clinton, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown of Clinton, at the Clinton Methodist Church, March 15 in a 5 p.m. ceremony. The Rev. David Liscomb officiated. Their reception took place at the Local 898 Hall in Rawsonville.

The bridegroom entered service three days later, and is beginning his basic training, while the bride is residing with her mother and continuing her studies at Ypsilanti High School.

For the wedding, the bride wore a gown of white lace with long sleeves and scallops at the neckline and edging the tiered lace train. A petal headpiece held her bouffant shoulder-length veil and white miniature mums and roses formed her bouquet.

Her maid of honor wore a light blue A-line gown and carried blue-tipped carnations and white roses, while the four bridesmaids wore royal blue gowns of similar style and also carried blue and white flowers.

Mrs. Donald Ware of 615 Glenwood Blvd., the bride's cousin, was matron of honor and two other cousins, the Misses Cathy Freshcorn of Deerfield and Robin Walden of Tipton, Miss Barbara Arntz of Jackson and Mrs. Gerald Bates of Clinton, were bridesmaids.

Best man was the bridegroom's uncle, Robert Jurasek of Clinton, and ushers were the bride's brother, Michael, of Clinton, Gerald Bates and Richard Waters, both of Clinton, and Bart Calloway of Manchester.

Ringbearer was the bride's brother, Kevin, of Ypsilanti, and flower girls were her cousins, Robin Wells of Adrian and Donna Cook of Brighton.

For the reception, the brides' uncles and their wives, the Oliver Craigs of Britton and the James Browns of Ann Arbor, aided in hosting duties.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Clinton High School, was employed at the Ford Motor Co. Saline plant until entering service.

The Rebekah Lodge's progressive dinner with 35 members attending last week included 21 past noble grands of the group. The past leaders were honor guests and the present noble grand and her mother provided two of the three courses, with planning headed by the noble grand.

First course was a sherbet fruit cup at Noble Grand Mrs. Robert Sutter's home, where she was assisted by the vice grand, Mrs. Lester Withrow.

Then members moved to the home of Mrs. LeRoy Thayer for the casserole meat course. Mrs. Fred Millsbaugh and Mrs. Arnold Lennert assisted her. Then the group

Teaching On drugs Advised

Special to The Press
EAST LANSING — Responsible grade school education about drugs and sex might save high schools and colleges a goodly number of the problems they now encounter, two Michigan State University educators indicated as they addressed a PTA Problem Clinic on the campus last week.

College students who use drugs usually fall into one of three groups, according to Dr. James S. Feurig, director of MSU's Olin Health Center.

They are those who are misguided about what is needed to be a part of the "going" crowd; those who have some degree of emotional instability and seek escape rather than counsel, and those who rebel against parents' "authoritarian" control and play out their hostility against society, paternalism, bureaucracy, the establishment, he said.

Dr. Feurig suggested that children should be taught from the seventh and eighth grades "about what drug substances are, how they came to be, how they work on the human body and their dangers, so that the youth are equipped to make decisions in their own best interest."

In another clinic, Dr. Joseph G. Dzenowagis of the MSU Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, said that sex education to meet the needs and problems of children and youth "requires a broad base of planning, should be woven into the general and health curriculums from kindergarten through high school, and should involve most teachers."

He emphasized that "crash" programs and piecemeal efforts serve to retard development of a total and effective program.

Both Dr. Feurig and Dr. Dzenowagis counseled against the "fear" and "don't" type of tutelage, and pleaded for an intellectual, informative approach.

Each will be hostess to from 6 to 8 women in coming weeks in a series of Newcomer Club events for new residents. Planning the welcoming, informal gatherings in their own homes or apartments are (from left) Mrs. John G. Cartwright, wife of Ypsilanti's city manager, Mrs. James K. Baker of 911 Pearl St., and Mrs. Charles Bair of 2827 Golfside Dr. They are shown at the Cartwright home at 1824 Roosevelt Blvd.

Newcomers plan events For those new in city

The Ypsilanti Newcomers Club is beginning a neighborhood coffee hour program to introduce new people in the community to each other and to members of the club.

The purpose of the coffee hour is to help new arrivals feel welcome in their own neighborhood as well as in Ypsilanti.

Normally, under the new plan, there will be 6 to 8 coffee hours each month for 30 to 40 women in all. Since this is the first month, they are having 12 hostesses to welcome 68 women to their neighborhoods.

Included are two groups which are inviting couples to their homes for evening coffee hours. These groups were created because of the need for welcoming working women to the area.

The hostesses for this month include Mrs. R. Clark McCormack of 2926 Washtenaw Ave., Mrs. Terry Lanker of 2827 Golfside Dr., Mrs. Charles Bair of 2827 Golfside Dr., Mrs. Donald Zupper, of 1811 Grove Rd., Mrs. John G. Cartwright of 1824 Roosevelt Blvd., Mrs. Robert Zenson of 219 N. Normal St., Mrs. James Baker of 911 Pearl St., Mrs. Richard Wittig of 8909 Oxford Ct., Mrs. George Richards of 465 Owendale Ave., Mrs. Joe Gaul of 1190 Levona St., Mrs. Thomas Barnes of 2756 Golfside Dr., and Mrs. Larry Dooley of 3621 Eli Dr.

The coffees are to be informal with six to eight women at each one. The Newcomer hostess, Mrs. Robert Hunt, is making available her list of new people to the chairman of each month's coffee hour program. This chairman will then divide the women into groups according to where they live, and the hostesses will issue the invitations for coffee.

Anyone wishing to be a hostess for such a coffee hour or to be invited to one should contact Mrs. Carl Jech of 1276 Hull St. at 482-2609.

HELOISE'S HINTS

Old frames make gifts

By HELOISE CRUSE
DEAR HELOISE: I just recently stumbled upon a wonderful idea for making different and very original gifts to have on hand when the occasion arises.

My closet was full of very old pictures with beautiful, ornate frames — both large and small. I decided to take these out of the closet, clean them up and redo them.

The results were unbelievable and I decided they were just too pretty to put back in the closet.

I removed the glass, picture, cardboard insert and backing. Set the glass aside. I then took leftover material (used corduroy on mine, but velvet would be lovely) and covered the backing with that and taped it on.

Then I tacked artificial flowers on the material and reinserted my "art work" back in the frame.

They were beautiful and so different!

On frames appropriate for the kitchen, I used the same idea, but put miniature kitchen plaques on the material. They are really conversation pieces.

It's amazing what you can do with just a little imagination. The possibilities are unlimited and they make wonderful and unique gifts. Janice Hockersmith That's a terrific idea, Janice.

If you aren't lucky enough to have a closet full of old frames, check your local paper for public estate sales. Bet you could pick up some dandies for practically nothing.

But better yet, snoop around in grandma's attic — maybe she has some fancy Victorian frames. Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I wish you would remind parents, particularly mothers, to stop at times and listen, really listen, to their children while they are playing house.

It may make some mothers take a look at themselves as it did me recently!

I heard my daughter screaming and talking rudely to her playmates. I realized I was looking in a mirror.

This wasn't my child speaking, but she had taken on her mother's image. And it wasn't pretty. I stop and think now before I speak. Yvonne

Deck wall with your mementos

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Looking for a fun project? Try your hand at a love-me wall.

Gather all sorts of interesting and cherished paraphernalia from babyhood, if you can go that far back in your digging, and decorate the wall with it.

The best source for these items is your mother. Your project may provide her with a catharsis if she has been saving trunk loads of such stuff—and what mother doesn't. Now she'll be happy that it may be put to good use.

Here are some ideas:

Baby teeth and locks of hair: You can paste the teeth to a piece of black velvet. Twine your hair around it. Put a tiny bow on the circlet of hair put the whole thing in a frame.

A special baby rattle or a tiny cape or beautiful christening dress also looks nice framed.

Did you go to dancing school? Ask mom for one of those dance programs. You will not need to remove the page with your name on it. Just fold it back, and put it in a frame so that the page with your big act shows.

Medals, anyone? If you've copped off a bit of gold, silver or bronze for athletic prowess or brain power, add it to your collection.

What about that school yearbook? What did they predict for you? Frame it. Or—make a pretty pastep of the prediction with the big letters announcing "first girl to the moon (1959)" or whatever.

Do you have souvenirs from nursery school or kindergarten?

ten? How about that first art effort or the doll you made in carpentry shop?

That first letter written to your parents from camp should be a dilly.

Did you get any trophies? Have you made the newspapers for any reason?

A YEGG HIGH on the police "criminal wanted" list finally was tracked down and given a merciless grilling at headquarters. "Did you get anywhere?" asked the captain when it was over. "Nowhere, sir," regretted the inquisitor. "We brow-beat him, and questioned him without a pause for a full hour. All the bum did was doze off mumbly. 'Yes, dear, you're perfectly right!'"

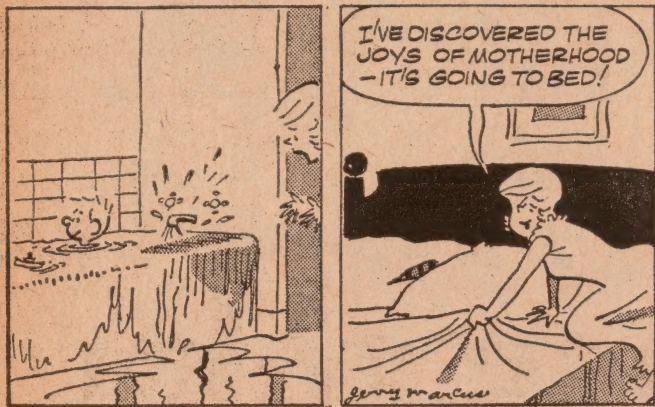

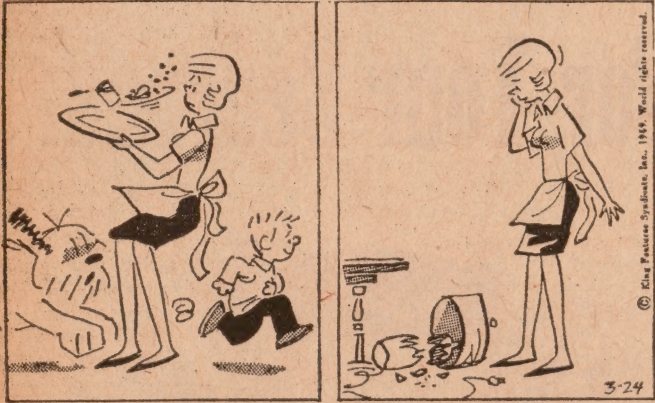

Back in 1944, Billy Rose put on an elaborate revue at his newly acquired Ziegfeld Theatre called "The Seven Lively Arts," starring Beatrice Lillie and Bert Lahr, and featuring a ballet specially written for the occasion by the great Stravinsky. After the premiere, Rose cabled Stravinsky, "Ballet sensational success. Would be even greater if you will reorchestrate it." Stravinsky cabled back, "Content with sensational success."

RAMPUS KUTUPS:

From Haverford: Lieutenant: "Beg pardon, Colonel—the troops are revolting." Colonel: "Well, you're pretty repulsive yourself." From Reed: "My wife fell down a flight of stairs." "Cellar?" "No, I'm hoping she can be repaired."

DEAR ABBY:

Parents get warning: 'Make big deal' of pot

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR READERS: Rarely do I devote an entire column to one letter, but the seriousness of this problem has prompted me to do just that. So if you're looking for a laugh today, better skip Dear Abby.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is a junior in high school, and he tells us that any kid in his school who wants "grass" (marijuana) or even "acid" (LSD) knows where he can get it.

He has told us that so far he has never tried any of this stuff, but most of his friends have. When we asked him for the names of some of the kids who have "tried it," so we can track down the people who are selling it, he refused, saying he didn't want to be a "fink."

He also said that we adults are making too big a thing over pot and acid — that it isn't nearly as dangerous as we think it is.

What are the facts? What can we tell our son? What should we do? Concerned Parents

DEAR CONCERNED PARENTS: Tell him that a high school student who experiments with any mind-altering weed — or drug — is taking his life in his hands.

Even in a time when moral absolutes are held to be old-fashioned, in this matter of "pot" or drugs for kicks, thrills and new sensations, parents should not hesitate to say, "This is wrong!" Hospitals and mental health clinics everywhere are filled with the evidence. Amateur experimentation with the brain cells makes no more sense than amateur heart surgery.

When your son says marijuana, LSD, and other drugs are freely available around his high school he is undoubtedly telling the truth. When he says parents "make too big a thing out of it" he is parroting the sales pitch of the pushers.

The sad fact is that parents are desperately ill-equipped to cope with the pot and drug propaganda. For most of them it is something that is simply outside their experience. What are nice middle-aged people expected to know about something which in their childhood was confined to the lowest elements of society?

You are correct in seeking "the facts." But the facts are not easy to come by. Science is just now getting around to serious research on the subject, and for too many kids it is a mathematical certainty that the facts will come too late.

About marijuana, this much is known: It is not physically addictive. The pot cult capitalizes on this. But all it means is that marijuana does not require constantly increasing dosages to produce its mind bending effects, and that a pot user deprived of the weed does not get physically ill from withdrawal pangs.

However, marijuana does tend to become psychologically addictive for some. The evidence suggests that this kind of addiction is to the constant user what alcohol addiction is to the alcoholic. It is something less than a true addiction, as is heroin, but it is something more than a "bad habit."

Marijuana now flooding the country is of varying degrees of potency, and unlike the standardized toxic content of alcoholic products the varying potency produces varying effects. It can cause anxiety, confusion, impaired judgment, panic, temporary psychosis and a feeling of well being in the face of real danger. But the greatest threat of marijuana, and I cannot emphasize this too strongly, is that IT PUTS CHILDREN IN TOUCH WITH THE DRUG TRADE, AND ANYONE WHO SELLS MARIJUANA TO CHILDREN WILL SELL THEM ANYTHING. AND THIS CAN BE THEIR INTRODUCTION TO THE HEAVIER STUFF, AND A PRELUDE TO A MENTAL BREAKDOWN, A SERIOUS ADDICTION, OR BOTH.

More recently, young addicts have taken alarmingly to yet another destroyer, Methedrine, known in the jargon as "speed," and taken either orally or by injection. "Speed" is a jolting stimulant which can almost literally burn out the nervous system and leave the victim a mental and physical wreck.

The chain starts with the marijuana contact and the propaganda about parents "making too big a thing of it." Parents can't make too big a thing of it. Which brings us to Question No. 2: What should you do?

MAKE A BIG THING OF IT! Consult your family doctor on the available scientific information. Have him talk man-to-man with your son, as back-up for your own talks with the boy. By all means talk with the school principal. Find out his attitude and the attitude of his teachers. Whatever else you do, don't make the mistake of doing nothing. Crossed fingers and prayers don't work! Yours, for a healthier America, Abigail Van Buren.

YOUR HEALTH:

Mother punishes teen As 'cause' of surgery

By DR. LESTER COLEMAN
 I am sixteen years old, frightened and upset, and don't know where to turn. I know that I have not been a perfect daughter and have been acting up as my other friends do. My mother has just had a breast operation for cancer and she told me last night that it was due to aggravation I gave her because I smoke. Could this be true? Miss Y. N., Tennessee

Dear Miss N.: I am certain that there is a total breakdown in your relationship with your mother at the present time and that you both are misunderstanding each other. This unhappy period for your mother is a difficult one and perhaps she is trying, in a rather naive way, to get you to stop smoking as she probably has before without success.

Let me assure you that there is no relationship between your "acting up" and the fact that your mother had a breast cancer. I am most sympathetic with the emotional stress that your mother is under, but I completely disagree with imposing on you this special sense of guilt that you do not deserve.

I believe you can contribute markedly to your mother's recovery by giving her additional comfort by stopping smoking.

For my other readers, let me say that many women somehow attribute breast tumor to injury or to some special activity. Almost always, there is no truth to this relationship.

DR. BROTHERS:

Wife admits she has A crush on her doctor

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Dear Dr. Brothers: I have had to visit our family doctor fairly regularly for the last few months because of a minor illness. To my surprise, I find that I've developed a genuine school-girl crush on him. I think about him a lot and get self-conscious when I have to see him. I don't think he knows how I feel but I'm afraid he might find out. I'm very happily married but I still feel like a teen with my doctor. — G.W.

Dear Mrs. W.: The role of the physician in our society is highly esteemed. Because of the prestige of his profession and the life and death nature of his work, the physician is often imbued with more than human qualities by the layman.

The female patient may occasionally translate her high estimation for her doctor and the gratitude for his concern for her well-being into romantic fantasies. She misinterprets his solicitude about her health and the functioning of her body as personal interest and enjoys the undivided attention he gives to her problems.

She forgets that this is his job, that he has other patients besides herself, choosing to see his treatment of her as evidence of a special bond.

Of course, doctors are human also and a physician may sometimes find himself attracted to one of his female patients. But for the most part, the doctor prefers to discourage flirtatiousness in his female patients simply because it is likely to make his job more difficult.

Psychiatrist Paul Chodoff notes that, within limits a pleasant rapport between doctor and patient can be advantageous for the treatment of the patient, inclining the patient to be cooperative with the physician in an effort to please him personally.

But a certain amount of social distance between doctor and patient is necessary for the physician to carry out his treatment most effectively. The patient must have enough respect for his authority and confidence in his ability to entrust his health to his care and submit to his instructions.

The doctor is also in the delicate position of being obligated to view and examine parts of a patient's body usually seen only by a spouse. In order to avoid embarrassment or sexual overtones, a certain amount of reserve is required. The flirtatious female patient may hamper this professional attitude.

The doctor is somewhat of a father-figure in our society, all-knowing and all-powerful, someone who can be depended upon to right our wrongs and protect us from danger.

Women whose private lives have failed to provide them with mature sexual satisfaction or emotional fulfillment may look to their physician as the remedy for their unhappiness.

Being aware of the probable motivations behind your crush on your doctor may help you to cope with your feelings in his presence.

Even if he did perceive your emotional involvement, it is probable that he would not be greatly surprised, having no doubt noticed similar behavior in previous patients. You might consider finding a new doctor but hopefully you will be able to accept your feelings and take your school-girl crush with the grain of salt it requires.

If you have a problem, write to Dr. Joyce Brothers in care of The Press. Questions of general interest will be answered in this column.

TEEN DATELINE:

What's with my fickle sis?

By ELE and WALT DULANEY

Dear Ele and Walt: My sister is a very enthusiastic girl but her relationships are not very stable. I know it's common for teenage girls to have a number of boyfriends and crushes, but she can't even keep a girl friend for more than three weeks. At first she's really high on a person. Then suddenly she's completely off the same person. There's no in-between for her and it doesn't seem to be improving any as she grows older. Any suggestions? — Older Sister.

Dear Older Sis: You're right to be concerned. Sis obviously lives in a dream land where she waits to have a Prince Charming or Lady Wonderful emerge and make her life sensational. Thus, she insists that each new acquaintance wears the robes of royalty and then angrily expels him when his commoner's toe peeks from beneath the red velvet.

If you could get her to reverse her routine, she might start to mature out of fantasyland. Could you get her to tutor drop-outs, work with the severely mentally retarded or handicapped, or be a hospital aide? If so, she would start with reality, facing people she couldn't pop up on a pedestal.

Then, if she stuck with it, she might discover in her giving that these people had human value after all. Best of all, there'd be "people experts" on the staff to guide and counsel her to see needed growth. Try. — Ele and Walt.

Dear Ele: I want to know what's the polite thing to do if you run out of silverware at a banquet? This happened to me and I couldn't eat my dessert because there wasn't a spoon and the waitresses had all gone. — Gina.

Dear Gina: If you're with a date or friend, you can ask him to let you use his spoon when he's done and then rinse it in your water glass before using it. But if this jars you, simply skip dessert or claim you're full and pass it on to someone who's spoon-equipped. Asking your date to prowl the corridors to find a waitress who'll bring a spoon is asking too much. — Ele.

Dear Walt: Would you please print something to tell the girls not to ask their dates to carry all their junk in their pockets for them? So far this year I've been asked to carry cough drops, cigarettes, perfume, fat wallets, thin magazines and even half an apple. What this does to the fit of a suit is awful but it's sure hard to say no. — Alex.

Dear Alex: This is one of the most persistent complaints we get but the packrats should not bear sole responsibility. What kind of guy lets himself get lugged up with all this stuff? If you don't want to tote the stuff in a pocket, stop at a magazine stand or drugstore and invest 5 cents in a paper sack and then pile all the gumdrops, compacts and combs inside. After you've paper-bagged it in pouch places once with a girl, you can be sure she'll slim down her portables next time to a small clutch bag she'll bear herself.

If you're worrying about the prom next month, send 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for your copy of our new "Prom Pointers" newsletter. Make your request in care of The Press.

Life & Leisure: A guide for dedicated fun-lovers

What's at the movies tonight

GREETINGS: Anti-establishment satire loosely wound on the theme of three youths passing time until they receive the inevitable "greetings" from their friendly draft board. Ranging from blackest comedy to sheer hilarity, the film is no less meaningful for the fact that it is also superbly entertaining. (X)—Fifth Forum

BULLITT: Director Peter Yates has taken two movie clichés—the grimly honest cop in a corrupt world and one-dimensional "star" Steve McQueen — and made them both work. Artistically and technically superior; a cinema triumph. (M) — State-Wayne, Quo Vadis Penthouse I BARBARELLA: Jane Fonda plays a futuristic space traveler in a film with as little substance as its star's scanty wardrobe. — Wayne Drive-In.

CHARLY: Sensitive story of a mentally-retarded man given a second chance by a miraculous brain operation, and eventually plunged back into darkness when the new advance proves temporary. An easy candidate for embarrassing pathos, the film is saved by dedicated low-key direction and Cliff Robertson's almost loving portrayal of the ill-fated hero. (G) — La Parisien, Michigan

THE FIREMEN'S BALL: Originally a parable of Slavic bureaucracy in pre-Dubcek Czechoslovakia, Milos Forman's film has lived with continued relevance through three eras of Czech politics. Characterizing the party functionaries as firemen staging a ridiculous ball while a house burns to the ground, the film — initially witty satire, later broad comedy — finds its most haunting meaning in the current tragedy of Soviet occupation. — Campus.

THE HORSE IN THE GRAY FLANNEL SUIT: The usual magic which sparks a Walt Disney film is missing in this agonizingly overextended story of a horse who triumphs both in the show ring and on Madison Avenue. On a double bill with a new "Winnie the Pooh" short, the second feature really carries the bill. (G)—Martha Washington

VALLEY OF THE DOLLS: Taken from the novel of the same name which probes the sexual and other hangups of the pill-popping generation, the movie is just as bad as the former bestseller and ought to do just as well with a not-too-discriminating audience. — Ypsi-Ann, Willow and Algier's Drive-ins.

2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY: Spectacular cinema effects have made Stanley Kubrick's futuristic epic one of the most well-deserved hits of the season. The relative absence of dialogue and narrative only increases the visual magnificence of a film which challenges all the unique possibilities of the film media. — Quo Vadis

I LOVE YOU, ALICE B. TOKLAS: Establishment man Peter Sellers samples some update brownies and follows his modern Alice B. into the hippie underworld. Rather crude and slapstick, but it's a Seller's market!—Wayne Drive-In.

PLANET OF THE APES: Human space travelers find themselves in a world turned upside down in which apes rule and humanoid beings are hunted as quarry. Plenty of room for either good satire or not-so-good slapstick; the filmmakers chose the low road. — Ypsi-Ann, Willow and Algier's Drive-ins.

THUNDERBALL — FROM RUSSIA WITH LOVE: It's hard to remember which film is about what, but James Bond fans won't worry about it as their hero fights off everything from man-eating sharks to similarly carnivorous female spies in a double-bill of two of his best film outings. — State.

ANGRY BREED—THE VIOLENT ONES: Films that can be accused of anything but pretentiousness, this double-bill gives the "bread and circus" lovers a full measure of uncut action. Whatever turns you on... — University Drive-In.

ROMEO AND JULIET: Director Franco Zeffirelli's contemporary retelling casts two real teen-agers in the roles of the adolescent lovers. The dramatic poetry of Shakespeare's lines is somewhat obscured, but the freshness and immediacy of this down-key version more than compensate for the loss. In Zeffirelli's hands, the play becomes one of character, and the transformation is as exciting emotionally as it is intellectually. (G)—Fox Village

THE BROTHERHOOD: Focusing on the members of a single family, the film tells the epic story of the Mafia contrasting the crude racketeering of the old days with the "respectable" business enterprises which mask the modern underground. The film bogs down a bit in perverse nostalgia, but on the whole, it is chillingly effective in its realism. — Wayne Drive-In.

THE NIGHT OF THE FOLLOWING DAY: Marlon Brando has once again found a film worthy of his talents in Hubert Cornfield's chilling study of the pathology underlying the kidnapping of a young girl. Psychological acuity is matched by technical brilliance in a film which ranks among the best thrillers in recent memory. — Quo Vadis Penthouse II.

THE DETECTIVE: Frank Sinatra stars in this graphic representation of the criminal subculture of the city. The story itself is unremarkable, dealing far too superficially with many of the critical issues it touches upon. What is exceptional is that the movie attempts to break with the age-old stereotypes of honor-bright policemen and rotten-to-the-core criminals. If only for its effort at honesty, the film is worth consideration. — State-Wayne.

SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON: One of Walt Disney's most spectacular adventure stories, the film recreates the classic about a family stranded on a deserted island and forced to make their home there. Technically and artistically up to the standards. (G) — Wayside

MAN OF LA MANCHA: David Atkinson repeats his Broadway role as the romantic knight in this sparkling musical adaptation of Don Quixote. Now presented with a professional cast headed by Atkinson and Patricia Marand under the auspices of the U-M Professional Theater Program, the production marks one of the most exciting theater events in the area. — Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor; 8:30 p.m. curtain tonight; tickets $2 to $6.

Electrical controversy stressed

Honor awarded

DETROIT (AP) — Ardric L. Philliganes of Detroit has been selected outstanding handicapped postal employee of 1969 in the Illinois-Michigan postal region.

A 28-year veteran employee of the Detroit Post Office, Philliganes suddenly went blind two years ago.

NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of another vast power blackout like the one that darkened the Northeast in 1965 was raised Sunday night by the National Educational Network's "PBL."

The hour-long segment of the program moved into a number of areas involving electrification, but focused primarily on facets of the continuing controversy between public and private power advocates.

Perhaps partisans on either side may have found the program more controversial than the average viewer. It seemed that if the program had an editorial viewpoint, it was the position that both public and private electricity suppliers should work together and that more elaborate safeguards—power grids—should be built to protect the public.

CBS's "21st Century" early in the evening re-emphasized by demonstration what man the destroyer is doing to his world—polluting the air, poisoning the water, and generally destroying the balance of nature.

Neither program had much to say that was new, but television perhaps also serves by reminding the public that there is still work to be done in vital areas.

NBC on Friday traced the journey of man thousands of years ago from his arrival in Alaska southward 16,000 miles to the southern tip of South America.

"The First American" took the viewer on a camera trip, with archeologists for guides, from prehistoric shelters built of mammoth bones in Siberia to a dig in Patagonia.

From evidence at the various excavations, it is presumed that the first men in America were Asians who crossed from Siberia, perhaps as long as 50,000 years ago, when glaciers had lowered the sea so that a land bridge was created.

At the various sites, bones, early stone and metal tools were shown. Specialists told of early man's way of life and showed the evidence of his migration.

The program was highly educational although at times it seemed more like an illustrated lecture than a television presentation.

NBC's "Hollywood: The Selznick Years" also on Friday was a disappointing and unimaginative hodge podge of film clips from old movies intercut with performers and directors who had worked with producer David O. Selznick.

The program seemed designed more as a flattering memoir than a rounded portrait of a man and an era. It was interesting that one of his films that has been reissued received a lot of plugs.

The most interesting portion of the hour showed screen tests of various stars seeking the part of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone with the Wind," but even these were handled clumsily.

Needed: goose For baby eggs

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — Authorities are seeking an unidentified motorist who took one of Bill Brehm's two white Chinese geese—just at a time when some goose eggs need tending. Brehm told police a car stopped outside the motel he operates at U. S. 27 and M20 in Mount Pleasant Saturday and an occupant grabbed one of the pet geese from the motel grounds.

Brehm said he didn't know whether the male or female was taken, or whether the remaining goose would sit on the eggs until they hatch.

IT'S A PICNIC by Nancy Fair McIntyre (Viking Press; $5.95). When you're sitting in the movies and your stomach begins to growl with hunger, when you're riding bumper-to-bumper traffic with no end in sight, when your family has a sit-down strike on togetherness... have a picnic. Whimsical advice, but the author of this most unusual new cookbook really means it and has really done it. Tired of looking around for a decent restaurant, spending a fortune for a meal and yielding, at the same time, to a decadent kind of passivity, Miss McIntyre has started a one-woman campaign to revitalize the lost art of picnicking. Not just deviled eggs and fried chicken either, but exciting gourmet recipes that turn every picnic into a special event. Summer's just around the corner, and if bending over a hot stove isn't your idea of fun, just remember — it's a picnic!

Plymouth Scores Most Points in Three Tests

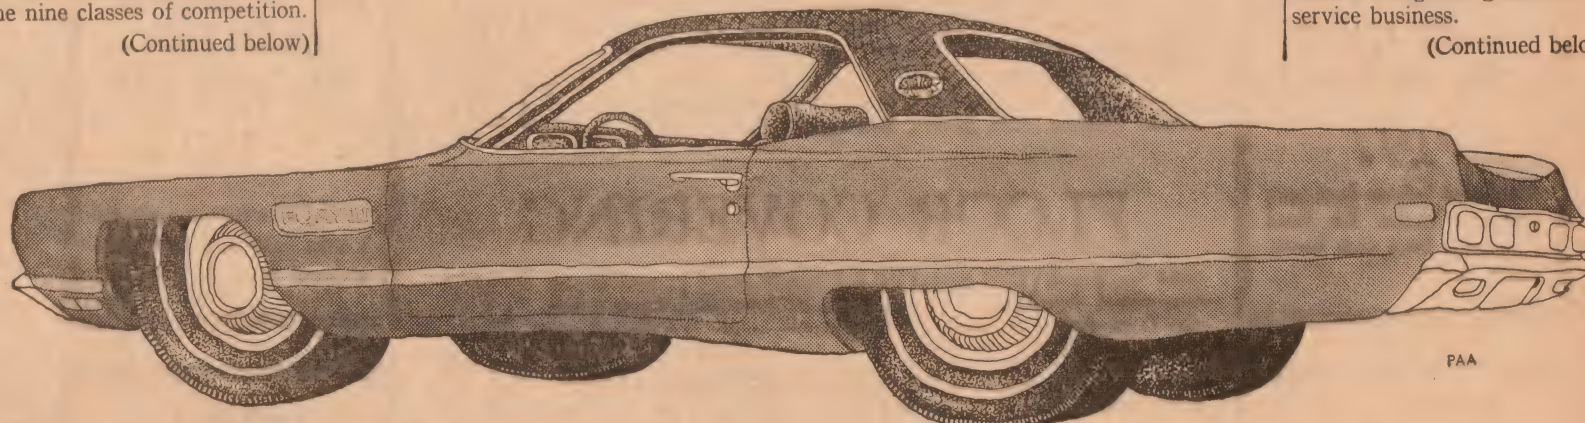

A Plymouth Fury I scored the highest number of points of all 60 cars that competed in fuel economy, acceleration and braking tests of the Union/Pure Oil Performance Trials at Daytona Beach, Fla.

The Plymouth Fury, competing in Class V for cars equipped with standard V-8 engines, scored a total of 98 performance points out of a possible 100.

Two other Plymouth entries finished first in their respective classes, giving the Plymouth line of cars winners in three out of the nine classes of competition.

Special price

Everyone says special, but we really mean it, and we can prove it. Snapper's a special car, limited edition model from Plymouth. Once the model is discontinued, it will be pretty tough (or impossible) to get one. Among the features that make it unique is a special roof, a kooky new turtle-shell vinyl top with "camp" Snapper emblems scampering across the roof pillars. Snapper's special paint is an exclusive metallic muted-gold; cool. And Snapper comes equipped with a lot of other neat features, too: deluxe vinyl interior, white sidewalls, deluxe wheel covers, bumper guards, and a helpful little time-delay ignition switch light. The whole package goes at a special price (and we really mean special) for a limited time. Equip one to your personal needs, with anything from a Super Commando 440 V-8 to 8-track stereo, and it becomes a truly individual vehicle. At your Plymouth Dealer.

"THE RASCALS: FREEDOM SUITE" (Atlantic). Dual album featuring 11 rock selections just topped with a bluesy instrumental disc. Both are wrought with fine musicianship, the first infusing rock with gospel soul and the second breaking into new directions in a not-so-standard jazz idiom. Highlights include "Me and My Friends," "A Ray of Hope" and a frenzied drum solo "Boom."

MARY HOPKINS: "POST CARD" (Apple). Mary Hopkins' lilting soprano lends appeal to little known songs by Donovan, George Martin and others in this LP put out under the tutelage of Paul McCartney. A new arrangement of the traditional "Love is the Sweetest Thing" stands out as a number which suggests possible new "directions" for pop music.

Special

DUDLEY RANDALL, one of the best-known black poets in the Detroit area, will present a reading of his own poetry tomorrow afternoon at U-M—U-M Undergraduate Library Multipurpose Room, Ann Arbor; tomorrow at 4:10 p.m.; admission free

FLYING BURRITO BROS.: "THE GILDED PALACE OF SIN" (A&M). Two alumni of the recently reformed Byrds combo have turned out an LP which shows a smooth transition into the country groove. Generally understated, the group occasionally lets loose to realize the full excitement potential of country and Western music. Vocals are outstanding on "Hot Burrito No. 1" and a very clever "Hippie Boy."

Open housing changes little In Birmingham in past year

DETROIT (AP)—It's been a year since the residents of suburban Birmingham voted to adopt an open housing ordinance. But since then, the mandate hasn't changed things much—in or out of Birmingham.

Before the ordinance passed, there was one long-established Negro family in town. Now there are three more at the most—no one is sure of the number. And Birmingham still looks like Birmingham, with large homes on winding, shady streets.

According to city officials, there have been no complaints under the new ordinance. In one apartment house, a Negro family moved in after a survey of tenants showed they favored the new neighbors.

Birmingham, among a handful of Michigan towns, was the first Detroit suburb to adopt an open housing measure by referendum. Ads in the Birmingham Eclectic, a weekly newspaper, looked like Birmingham, with passage carried the names of 700 open housing backers.

Now newspaper ads are being used in the campaign being carried on in suburban Grosse Pointe Farms. But signatures are being accepted from all five Grosse Pointes. Signers include Henry Ford II and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Hudson Jr.

The April 7 vote will be only advisory, but the city council is expected to enact into law the people's mandate.

The Fair Housing Committee wants to pass similar measures in all five Pointes.

Grants KNOWN FOR VALUES

Other Plymouth winners were a Valiant Signet in Class VII for six-cylinder compact economy cars, and a Barracuda in Class IX for sports compacts.

The Union/Pure Oil Performance Trials, held under the supervision of the National Association for Stock Car Racing, compared the basic performance characteristics of American-made 1969 models which are in the popular price ranges.

The fuel economy tests measured a car's fuel consumption at an average speed of 40 miles per hour over a distance of 18.567 miles.

The acceleration tests measured the time it took a car to accelerate from 25 to 70 miles per hour.

The braking tests demonstrated the car's high-speed stopping capability immediately after severe brake usage.

The 60 stock cars competing in the tests were taken directly from dealers' showrooms throughout the country to provide a realistic comparison of various makes and models.

Wagon Air Deflector

The 1969 Plymouth Fury station wagon models have a new and efficient air deflector, mounted at the rear of the roof to divert air around and across the big rear window, significantly reducing vision obstruction. By blowing clean air over the window, the deflector prevents rain, dust and grit from accumulating.

2,000 Teams of Students Competing in Plymouth's Trouble Shooting Contest

Teams of student mechanics from more than 2,000 high schools and colleges in every state of the Union will compete for $125,000 worth of prizes in the 21st annual Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest.

The contest is sponsored by the Chrysler-Plymouth Division of Chrysler Motors Corporation and Plymouth Dealers of America to encourage students with mechanical talent to continue their education and pursue careers in the growing automotive service business.

The winning two-man team at each of the 100 regional and state contests being held this spring will compete for $125,000 worth of scholarships, prizes, trophies and automotive equipment for their schools at the National Finals at the Indianapolis 500 Speedway in mid-June.

Winners at local and national contests are chosen by the speed and skill with which they find and fix malfunctions under the hood of a new Plymouth and restore the car to normal operating condition. All teams work on identical cars that have been deliberately tampered with in the same way.

Plymouth Dealers sponsor a two-man team from their local school and make a Plymouth car available to practice on. The teams from the 2,000 participating schools, which have a combined enrollment of 150,000 students taking automotive shop courses, are selected by school instructors.

The Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest originated in Los Angeles in 1949. It was sponsored by Plymouth Dealers there who sought to recruit young men as mechanic trainees. The annual contest grew in size as educators gave it their support.

Since the contest became national in scope in 1962, scholarships have been awarded to 116 students and full or part-time jobs have been found for more than 15,000 young men.

Detroit zoo's third director begins new four-point plan, including TV

DETROIT (AP)—Robert Willson, new director of the Detroit Zoological Park, is only the third one in its 45-year-old history. But already, it looks as if Willson will make his presence known.

The changes Willson plans include:

—Closed circuit television to observe behavior when the animals are in their dens and don't want humans around, such as when they are giving birth.

—The establishment of a genetics and behavior research center with Wayne State University's cooperation.

—A medical research project with application to human medicine.

—Acquisition of new animals to rejuvenate the blood lines of several zoo families which have become inbred.

Willson wants to charge a $1 admission fee, planning to ask Common Council to put the measure to the voters in November. But he also will keep the zoo open year-round for the first time in its history.

The first Detroit Zoological Park director was John T. Millen, who helped establish the zoo. The second director was the late Frank G. McInnis, a landscape architect who expanded the zoo to include hundreds of animals in natural, unbarred settings.

Dr. Willson loves animals. While picking over pictures of animals, looking for one to use for invitations for the annual zoo preview, he focused on one of his favorite female lions in her cage.

"She's a fine cat. I love her to death. But I just couldn't use that picture with the bars showing. I couldn't use a picture of an animal behind bars. It's just how I feel about it," he said.

Willson was born and grew up in the city. As a youngster in Detroit he helped a veterinarian care for horses.

Willson earned his veterinary medicine degree at Michigan State University. In 1944 he became head of the city's food sanitation inspection division. There was never a major tainted food scandal during his administration.

Willson, the only veterinarian ever elected president of the Michigan Public Health Association, in 1964 was named Michigan Vet of the Year. In 1966 he retired to private practice— from which Mayor Cavanagh coaxed him to the directorship in January.

He says, "I'm having so much fun that I think I'd do this for free."

Willson wants to set up at the zoo a canine exhibit showing development of the dog, an Australian plains exhibit with kangaroos and a model farmyard for the kiddies.

He wants to show another side of the city to children.

Braves' bid for title fails by three

Ypsilanti High loses again to Indians

By BARRY LEVINE
Press Sports Writer

EAST LANSING — There was only one thing which was the same as last year — the outcome.

The feelings, the team, the fans, even the game — almost everything was different. But Ypsilanti High could not change the most important aspect of the state high school basketball tournament.

The Braves were denied the coveted state championship for the second consecutive year by Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills. The score was 67-64, but as far as the Braves were concerned, it may as well have been 67-0.

More than on entire season — one full year, exactly 364 days — had gone by with only one real thought stuck somewhere in the minds of each of the Ypsilanti High cagers. The thought was the possibility of reaching the finals here at Michigan State's Jenison Fieldhouse.

More than that, was the remote hope of being able to face Ottawa Hills, the team which planted the bad memories, for the top prize of prep basketball in Michigan.

Almost as if by a pre-arranged script, each of the teams mowed down all obstacles on the way to the big rematch. Both teams wanted it, the Braves for obvious reasons, but the Indians because they had trailed Ypsilanti High in the basketball polls this season.

Both teams were mentally ready for the contest. Some observers had wondered if the Indians would be as "high" as the Braves because the game might have meant less to them after winning the title last year.

That proved not to be the case, but what is a definite possibility is that the Braves may have wanted the game too much. It is possible in basketball, as well as other sports, to get too "psyched up" for a game.

Often times that type of situation is characterized by tight, over-cautious play which was evident early in the contest as the Braves fell behind, 10-4, similar to the way they did against East Lansing last Wednesday. But in that one, the Braves stormed back and continued to play their own game to earn the victory.

Saturday night they fought back, but it was evident that the tension and pressure was still there and it showed in their shooting. They hit on only 33 per cent of their shots, making 23 baskets in over 70 attempts. Ottawa Hills connected at a 41 per cent clip.

After the Braves fought back in the opening period, the game was played on even grounds with the score knotted at 35-35 when the teams left for halftime.

Sparked by three quick baskets by center Robin Raymond, Ypsilanti High fought to a 43-41 lead early in the third quarter, but a surge in the last two minutes by Ottawa Hills put it on top before the frame finally ended 50-47 in favor of the Braves.

In the last eight minutes the lead changed hands 11 times and the score was tied three other times, but it was two free throws by forward Larry Harmelink with 13 seconds remaining which put Ottawa Hills ahead, 65-62.

Refusing to be counted out, the Braves raced down the court and Steve Rhodin hit a basket with about three seconds left. There was a foul committed on Ed Trice when the Indians brought the ball in bounds and he sank both free throws with but one second showing on the clock.

The difference in the game proved to be 6-8 all-star Ernie Johnson, who scored 10 of his 22 points in the final quarter. The Indians' big center took high lob passes over everyone's head and almost placed the ball in the basket.

For the Braves, Robin Raymond was again the big man, this time with 19 points. He led the Braves in their semifinal win over Detroit Mumford the previous night, and in this contest hit some big baskets in addition to doing a fine job on the boards.

Joe Frye and Charles Fuller

each had 13 points as they continued their fine tournament performances in what was their last game for Ypsilanti High. They will be joined in June graduation by Raymond, and Bob Rhodin, who although getting nine points in each of the last two games, was the biggest factor in the Braves' finishing the regular season with a 16-0 record and 22-1 including the tournaments.

Break 15 records:

Huron tankers sweep NAIA

CHICAGO — In an incredible assault on the varsity record book, Eastern Michigan this weekend laid claim to its second consecutive NAIA national swimming championship, at George Williams College in Downers Grove.

The Hurons, fulfilling Coach Mike Jones' promise for balanced scoring, battered the varsity standard in 15 of the 18 events on the program and far outdistanced runner-up Claremont Mudd of California, 312 to 252, in team scoring.

Simon-Fraser (238), MacAlester College (155) and Eastern Illinois (134) rounded out the top five.

Almost every time the Hurons jumped into the water, they broke a record of one sort or another. They added points in every event and carried away the big prize in three events: Keith Gill Saturday added the three-meter diving medal to his earlier triumph in the one-meter; and the Hurons' 400-yard medley relay team of Lester McCormick, Dennis Betts, Gordon Messer and Jeff Huxley won in NAIA record time.

Forty-nine schools participated in the three-day meet, and 32 scored. Claremont Mudd was runnerup for the second straight year after winning the title in 1967.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS
1650-yard freestyle: 1. Peter Harrower (Simon-Fraser), 17:13.2 (breaks NAIA record of 17:57.6); 2. Bruce Crouch (EM), 17:39.80 (varsity record); 10. Dennis Rogissart (EM), 18:11.70.
100-yard freestyle: 1. Kim Cummings (Adams State), 47.95 seconds (breaks NAIA in trials with 47.84; old record 48.57); 3. Jeff Huxley (EM), 48.8 seconds (broke varsity record in trials with 48.66; old record 50.1).

Pistons Explode In finale

158 points
Breaks record

By the Associated Press
Saving the best for last, the Detroit Pistons were as explosive as rocket fuel when they rewrote the record books on the final day of the season Sunday.

They trounced, overran, outshot, bombarded, and obliterated the Chicago Bulls 158-114 in a National Basketball Association contest in Cobo Arena.

It was the greatest point total for the Pistons in their history, eclipsing the record of 147 set Dec. 15, 1959.

Detroit, which finished next to last in the NBA's Eastern Division, also set a new halftime scoring record of 83 points, one point more than the former mark also set Dec. 15, 1959.

Detroit's 67 field goals also were new Piston and Cobo Arena records.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers playing without injured Elgin Baylor routed New York 128-111, which put the Knicks in third place in the Eastern Division; the Boston Celtics thrashed the Baltimore Bullets, Eastern champion, 126-98; the Milwaukee Bucks downed the Phoenix Suns 128-118 and the San Diego Rockets rocked the Atlanta Hawks 128-121.

The game at Detroit was never in doubt after the Pistons ran up a 46-23 lead in the first quarter.

Happy Hairston led the Pistons with 28 points and Walt Bellamy scored 25. Dave Bing, playing only two quarters, had 15 assists for the Pistons.

All-staters Announced This week

With the completion of the state tournament Saturday, the 1968 Michigan all-state teams as selected by The Associated Press will be announced this week.

The first of the four honor teams will be the Class D team in tomorrow's Press.

The Class C team will be revealed Wednesday, with the Class B on Thursday and the Class A on Friday. The 10 man teams were selected by an 11-member panel of newspapermen, including Press Sports Writer Barry Levine, after consultations with coaches and other members of various news media throughout the state.

Ottawa Hills Not surprised With success

By DAVE HERBST
Press Sports Editor

EAST LANSING — Bob Hendrickson wasn't a bit surprised about a couple of things Saturday night. Which should surprise quite a few people.

First, the Ottawa Hills High coach wasn't surprised to see Ypsilanti High come out in a press. And then, the boss of the Class A state champions wasn't surprised to see his Indians work around the press practically as if it didn't exist.

Between gulps of Pepsi, the perspiration-soaked Hendrickson talked of the problems his kids had experienced Friday night when Detroit Northeastern threw up a press.

He couldn't give any reason for it. But he knew at the time something that the Ypsilanti High coaching staff didn't know as the near-disaster unfolded in the semifinal: "Last night was the first time we were bothered by a press all year."

Asked if he had done anything special after the game with Northeastern, he replied: "No, we didn't make any changes. We just went over our pattern against the press."

Spectators may have observed Ottawa Hills' torrid shooting at certain junctures. There were times when they hit on three or four straight.

That was all part of their season-long script. In fact, Hendrickson, in response to a remark about a 50 per cent performance, candidly said: "Oh yes, we shoot like that all the time. We're about 49 per cent for the season."

Asked why that point had never been brought up before, he continued: "Well, I guess because nobody ever asked."

Hendrickson called this championship "sweeter than the first one. When you win, everybody wants to beat you. So it feels like more of an accomplishment."

Then the towering coach added a thoughtful note: "But don't get me wrong. It does me no special good to beat him (Ypsilanti High Coach Dick Ouellette). He's a great guy, and I can't think of anything worse than what he's going through now. Like this, two years in a row."

Asked to evaluate this year's Braves against last year's, Hendrickson said, "I don't think you can do it. They're two different teams. Two different types of teams. And we're a different team."

"They're a good team. A real good team. I think the big difference this year was that they were more ready for us."

Asked if he had doubts at any time during the game, Hendrickson, with his arm around one of his four sons, grinned: "Lots of doubts."

Wings' playoff hopes dim; Trail Leafs by four points

By the Associated Press

It's a game of nerves for the Detroit Red Wings, whose main hope is that the Toronto Maple Leafs commit suicide in the last week of the National Hockey League's regular season.

Toronto obliged Sunday, by losing to Chicago 4-1. The loss kept the Red Wings with a chance — although slim — of edging the Maple Leafs for the fourth last Stanley Cup playoff spot in the NHL's East Division.

The Red Wings, who were idle Sunday, lost to Toronto 3-1 Saturday.

Detroit general manager Sid Abel said "It's not over yet," while coach Bill Gadsby was not as confident, noting "The nail is halfway in (the coffin)."

In other games Sunday, the Minnesota North Stars were eliminated from any chance at West Division Stanley Cup playoff berth when they lost to Pittsburgh 5-0, while Philadelphia was nailing down a spot by beating St. Louis 4-3. In other games, Oakland edged Los Angeles 5-4, and New York beat the Boston Bruins 4-2.

In other games Saturday, Montreal defeated

New York 3-1, Boston whipped Chicago 5-3, Philadelphia downed Minnesota 5-1, Pittsburgh edged St. Louis 2-1 and Oakland shut out Los Angeles 4-0.

Detroit trails Toronto by four points in the standings, as the Red Wings have three games remaining and Toronto four. If Detroit wins all three, Toronto would just need one win and a tie to clinch the playoff berth.

Defenseman Jim Neilson scored two goals and assisted on a third, leading the Rangers past Boston. The victory extended New York's home ice unbeaten string to 17 games—one shy of the club record.

Vic Hadfield and Rod Seiling scored the other New York goals and Donnie Marshall, celebrating his 37th birthday, picked up his 500th career NHL point. Derek Sanderson and Ken Hodge scored for the Bruins.

The Rangers' victory combined with Toronto's loss at Chicago gave the New York a five-point bulge in the battle for third place. Ken Wharram led the Black Hawks past the Maple Leafs with a pair of goals. Jim Pappin and Stan Mikita had the other Chicago goals while Jim Dorey hit for Toronto. Rookie Norm

Phillies' Johnson Hits long ball again

By The Associated Press
Deron Johnson, who traveled downhill for the last three National League seasons, appears to be settling back into his old long-ball groove with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Johnson, who drove in 130 runs for Cincinnati in 1965 but delivered only 33 for Atlanta last year, continued to sparkle for Philadelphia in exhibition play Sunday, slamming a pair of two-run homers and a run-scoring double in a 5-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jerry Koosman, the New York Mets' sore-shoulder southpaw ace, hurled three scoreless innings in a 7-3 victory over Boston, but Red Sox right-hander Jim Lonborg worked only two full innings before his pitching shoulder tightened up.
Washington spotted Houston a 6-0 lead, then struck for four runs in the seventh inning and six more in the eighth to down the Astros 10-6.

three Washington runs with a homer and single, keying the comeback. Frank Howard, who picked up his first hit of the spring, and Del Unser, delivered two more apiece.

Second baseman Marty Martinez made a leaping catch of Graig Nettles' bases-loaded liner and turned it into a game-ending double play as Pittsburgh nipped Minnesota 5-4.
Sal Bando, Danny Cater and Dick Green tagged left-hander Mike Paul for homers, powering Oakland to a 7-4 victory over Cleveland.
Indians' "B" team bowed to San Diego 17-10 in a 36-hit slugfest despite six Cleveland homers, two of them by Zoilo Versalles.

The Chicago White Sox capitalized on two errors by shortstop Jackie Hernandez for four unearned runs in the eighth and a 4-2 verdict over Kansas City.
Lee May slammed a two-run homer and Alex Johnson and Johnny Bench each hit one with the bases empty, pacing Cincinnati to a 6-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

San Francisco pasted California 10-1, with Gaylord Perry scattering six hits through the first seven innings.
Two ninth inning errors by shortstop John Kennedy helped the Chicago Cubs score twice and shade Seattle 7-6 in the second game of a doubleheader after the Pilots took the opener 5-4 on Wayne Comer's triple and Larry Haney's infield out

Leading golfers Want Masters

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Golf's gold-prospecting gypsies moved today toward the $200,000 National Airlines Open at Miami—but most of them had their minds on another kind of green.

They are thinking about the traditional green coat of the Masters champion.

"I finished fifth last year at Augusta and I hope I can do better this time," said 210-pound Ray Floyd, after beating Gardner Dickinson in a sudden death playoff for $20,000 first prize Sunday in the $100,000 Jacksonville Open.

The word is that golf never again will be dominated by a single man, such as Ben Hogan and Sam Snead in their days, Byron Nelson and later Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Bill Casper.

The Masters, April 10-13, traditionally has been an exception. Since 1958, Palmer has won it four times and Nicklaus three. Bob Goalby is defending champion.

All played creditably in the tournament here this weekend, but at the tournament's end it was a duel between Ray Floyd, the 26-year-old, curly-haired bachelor, and the 130-pound 41-year-old Dickinson. Playing in gusty winds over the 7,221-yard, par 72, deerwood course, they finished in a tie at 278, 10 under par, and then Floyd clinched it by knocking in a birdie on the first extra hole, a dog-leg par 5. He put his third shot two feet from the pin.

New light racing cars Too 'fragile' for Sebring

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Elimination of minimum weights for prototype sports cars in international racing this year has produced bodies super light and downright fragile.

They were so fragile that the rough Sebring course and a seemingly increased supply of those traffic cones that police everywhere use to mark lanes during rush hours combined to literally pound the exotic machines into submission.

In part, that is the story of the victory by Jackie Ickx of Belgium and Jack Oliver of England in the 12-hour Sebring Endurance Race Saturday.

The rest of the story is the charmed life of the Ford GT40 cars, which have been racing five years and are still gracing victory lanes more often than any other machine.

When the Ford drivers first pitted their sturdy machines against the brand new, featherweight Ferraris and Porsches as qualifying began Thursday, they found their best was five seconds a lap slower than Ferrari.

The difference was only a shade less against Porsche.

"Competition becomes quite difficult when you are that much slower," Ickx said, "even though the Ford is still quite a good car."

The five factory Porsches from Germany took a pounding from the rough concrete and asphalt course carved from an old World War II air base.

"I drove behind the Porsches through the 'esses' several times," said veteran Bob Grossman of West Nyack, N.Y. "They bounded from side to side every time and I wondered if their suspension was going to survive that pounding."

It didn't. Two Porsches went out of the action and the others had long pit stops for repairs.

Joe Buzzetta of Smithtown, N.Y., and Rolf Stommelen of Germany brought one Porsche home in third place, four laps behind the winner.

Germans Gerhard Mitt and Udo Schutz finished fifth. Vic Elford and Dick Attwood of England were seventh in the other Porsche.

The Ferrari was a casualty of overheating in the final two hours, attributed at least partly to a collision with a traffic cone, which banged up the radiator at the rear of the little cars.

It finished second almost two laps back.

Some of the Porsches also tangled with the cones, placed alongside the courses to mark off-road hazards such as ditches. One Porsche had a long stop to replace the left front fender and headlights.

Even the winning Ford hit a cone, but it received less damage and was repaired quicker.

Huron jumps, Five marks Fall at once

KALAMAZOO — Five records in a single bound!
That's the astounding result of an Eastern Michigan triple jumper's effort here Saturday during the Michigan Indoor Track and Field Championships.

Kauko Ketola, a Huron import from Finland, lit up Read Field House when he hopped, skipped and jumped 50'3". It was a field house record. It was a meet record. It was an Eastern Michigan varsity record. And it was a Michigan collegiate record.

Ketola thus became the first Michigan collegian to break the 50-foot barrier in the triple jump. Interestingly, had he been eligible to compete on the recent NCAA Indoor Championships and responded with a similar effort, it would have been good for fifth place, some seven-and-a-half inches short of second place.

At the 69th annual Highlander Games there, Ellis won the invitational two-mile run with an 8:48.7.

UCLA, Temple stand Atop college cage world

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Would Lew Alcindor, who during his college career led UCLA to three national basketball titles and was himself a threetime All-American, change any of that?

"I don't think I'd go through it again," he said, grinning, but with a tone of conviction.

"It's very hard to study and play ball," said the 7-foot-11½ center who led the Bruins to an unprecedented third NCAA championship over Purdue 92-72 Saturday.

In the consolation game, Drake overpowered North Carolina 104-84.

Asked if he didn't think his inevitable pro basketball career might be even tougher, he quipped, "That's pretty tough but you don't have to go to class."

While a pro career is understood, Alcindor said making a choice between the American and National basketball associations is very much "up in the air," and "right now, I'm thinking about getting out of school in June."

His coach, John Wooden, said Alcindor has not sought his advice on a pro choice, and "I couldn't answer if he did."

The Bruin coach was "very, very pleased" with Saturday's climax to the Alcindor era at UCLA.

He credited the defensive play of Kenny Heitz with holding Purdue All-American Rick Mount to 28 points, below his season average.

But he also praised Alcindor for his aggressive play which resulted in 37 points and 20 rebounds.

Mount, who scored 36 points against North Carolina, hit his first two shots against UCLA, then went cold. He finished with 12 out of 36 field goal attempts.

Neal Walk, Simmie Hill, Bobby Smith, Butch Beard. Those were the college basketball stars who were to light up the 1969 National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

But by last Saturday's final, all the glitter belonged to a hockey buff who only took up basketball after he outgrew his skates, and a former business school student who never played basketball in high school.

Terry Driscoll of Boston College and John Baum of Temple were the pair who took their teams to the final. Baum and the Owls completed their surprising surge to the top by beating the Eagles 89-76 for their first NIT title since 1938, the year of the first NIT.

In the consolation game, Tennessee downed Army 64-52.

Driscoll, a 6-foot-7 senior pivot man who watched plenty of hockey games in Boston but never a college basketball game until he was a senior in high school, came into the tournament with little national recognition.

All he had was a 24-point average for the 16th-ranked team in the country which assumed the favorite role from the start, and the praise of retiring coach Bob Cousy.

Driscoll, a good-looking pre-med student who was a defenseman in hockey until his feet grew to a size 14 in high school, led the NIT in scoring with 96 points, 18 in the final, and in rebounding with 59.

Baum, a 6-5 senior who leaps like a pogo stick, came into the tourney with a 19-point average and went out with 84 points and 54 rebounds in four games.

He scored 30 points in the final, including 20 in the last half when the Owls made up a 67-62 deficit and then pulled away from a 75-73 lead with nine straight points.

The Temple victory ended BC's 19-game winning streak and sent Cousy into retirement on a sour note.

Win in ninth:

Tigers trip Cards on odd call

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The fans paid to see a World Series rematch between St. Louis Cardinal ace hurler Bob Gibson and Detroit Tigers Series hero Mickey Lolich Sunday.

But what they got was a ninth-inning comedy that smacked of the Keystone Kops, ending when umpire Art Frantz flagged home the winning run on a rule violation, giving the Tigers the 7-6 victory.

The crazy finish started when Norm Cash was walked by the Cards' third pitcher, Garry Waslewski. Tigers manager Mayo Smith sent Dave Campbell to do the running for Cash, and Campbell promptly stole second.

Campbell advanced to third on a long fly by Ron Woods and tried for home on a one-hopper Don Wert wrapped up the third base line. Third baseman Mike Shannon fired to catcher Jim Hutto and Campbell faked a dash back to the bag, drawing Hutto's toss.

When Campbell tried to reverse direction to get back to the plate, he ran full tilt into Hutto, rooted to the base line.

That, Frantz ruled, was interfering with the runner, and the Tigers added another game to their long list of ninth-inning victories.

Gary Waslewski, who came in the game in the last inning, was the loser, with Tom Timmerman getting the victory.

Both the Tigers and the Cards came from behind twice.

Al Kaline slammed a two-run homer in the first off Gibson, but Lou Brock came back and connected with a similar blast compliments of Lolich, giving the Cards a 3-2 edge.

Detroit tied it up on a walk and a double by Willie Horton that rolled into the left field corner.

Then Brock showed the baserunning fireworks for which he's famed to give the lead to St. Louis once more in the eighth, taking a walk, stealing second and sprinting for the plate when catcher Joe Cernich heaved the ball into center field trying to nip the speedster at second.

Mickey Stanley, who's been under doctors orders not to throw hard because of a sore arm, heaved the ball from center to the plate, but the throw was too high to get Brock.

The Tigers came back to make the score 6-4 on a walk, a pair of singles, a foreout and another single, but the Cards once again tied it up in the top of the ninth on two walks, a double and a single that took a crazy hop past shortstop.

Stanley's effort to nip Brock at the plate came as a surprise. Smith has kept him from shortstop in an effort to provide him with the rest that doctors say he needs to heal a torn muscle.

"It didn't bother me at all," Stanley said of the hard peg to the plate.

With Tom Matchick and Dick Tracewski sharing the duties at short, Mayo has been juggling the prospect of bringing Stanley in from the outfield to strengthen the Tigers' only apparent weakness.

Tracewski is a shining fielder, but leaves something to be desired at the plate. Matchick, has shown he can do both, but not with consistency.

"Only time will tell whether we can use Mickey at shortstop this spring," Smith said. "We'll just have to see if his arm comes around."

Conglomerates face probe

LTV Inc. hit with federal anti-trust suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department will file an antitrust suit against one of the nation's supergiant corporations in an effort to curb what an official terms the dangerous "merger-mania" of conglomerates.

The Department Sunday (Advertisement)

announced court action will be sought to force Ling-Temco-Vought Inc., the nation's 14th largest corporation, to "divest itself of all of its interests in the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp."

The Justice Department suit will set the stage for a test of whether current federal antitrust legislation is effective in controlling acquisition-minded conglomerates—corporations which hold power over several usually unrelated businesses.

LTV responded to the government announcement by saying it will vigorously defend its takeover of Jones & Laughlin, the sixth biggest steel producer in the country.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard W. McLaren said the suit, under the Celler-Kefauver Amendment to the Clayton Antitrust Act, is being filed now because the situation is too urgent to wait for new legislation.

If unchecked, McLaren said, such mergers as between LTV and Jones & Laughlin will result in ever-growing concentrations of economic power by fewer and fewer persons relatively uncontrolled by government or competition.

LTV said it was confident the acquisition of J&L did not violate "existing antitrust legislation" and that "the courts will vindicate LTV's action."

Before initiating the takeover last year, the firm said, an opinion was obtained from "one of the nation's leading antitrust law firms" that the acquisition, if challenged, "could be successfully defended in court."

LTV's position is that its holdings are so diversified that they do not decrease competition in any field.

McLaren, to back up his warnings of dangerous economic concentrations, cites figures showing that the 200 largest corporations controlled 58.7 per cent of the nation's manufacturing assets in 1967, compared to 48 per cent held by the top 200 in 1948.

The merger pace continued to accelerate last year with 4,462 acquisitions, a record high that almost doubled the 2,975 of 1967.

Johnson administration officials proposed new legislation to curb conglomerates after indicating existing laws were inadequate to regulate much of their activities.

McLaren denied this assumption, but said that even if it were so, he is willing to risk losing "a case or two" if it will help halt "merger-mania."

In attacking LTV, the government is picking on one of the nation's fastest growing conglomerates.

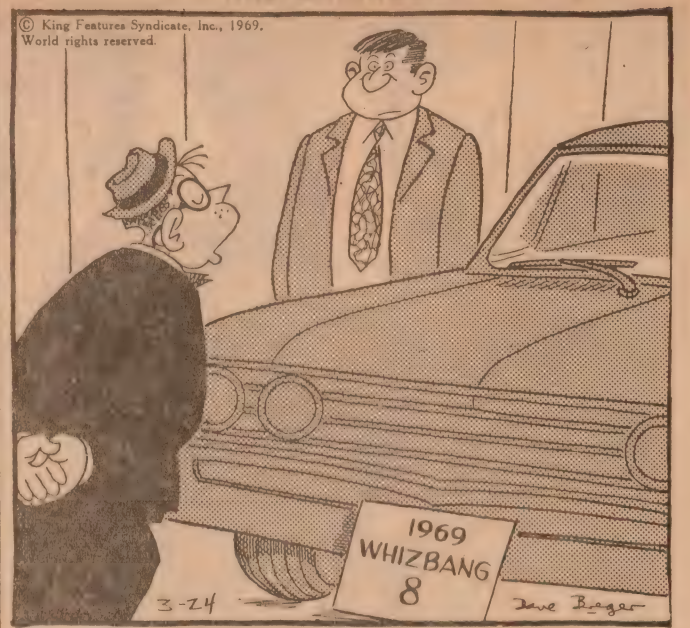

Basically a holding company, LTV has acquired 33 corporations since 1961 and has grown from 256th to 14th among the nation's corporate giants.

LTV's annual sales total $3 billion from products ranging from jet fighter planes to car rentals. The firm is the nation's eighth largest prime defense contractor.

Among companies controlled by LTV, are Wilson & Co. Sporting Goods, largest in its field; Braniff International Airlines; Wilson & Co., America's third largest meat packing firm; National Car Rental System Inc.; and Greatamerica Corp., itself a holding company.

A fully integrated steel company, Jones & Laughlin was taken over by LTV last year when the conglomerate gained 67 per cent of the company's stock.

Foreman to hit Money jackpot With Ray story

NEW YORK (AP) — Percy Foreman, the lawyer who advised James Earl Ray to plead guilty to the Martin Luther King Jr. assassination, said today an offer of $175,000 has been made for the movie rights to the story.

Foreman said the offer was made by Carlo Ponti, film producer and husband of Italian actress Sophia Loren, to William Bradford Huie, Ray's official biographer.

"And I'll get 60 per cent of it," Foreman said in an interview in his New York hotel. In addition to the flat fee, Ponti would pay 13 per cent of the gross receipts of the movie.

Foreman, of Houston, Tex., said Look magazine had guaranteed another $85,000 for Huie's series of articles on Ray's life, and that he was entitled to 60 per cent of that also.

The attorney said that his 60 per cent share of the movie, book and magazine rights might total $400,000 or so, but that he would take only the $150,000 agreed upon with Ray.

Foreman said he would put anything above that figure into trust for Ray's family.

"I didn't fix the fee, he (Ray) fixed it," Foreman said. He said he advised Ray to plead guilty "because I believed he would be electrocuted if he didn't."

Ray was given a sentence of 99 years in the Tennessee state penitentiary. He has since signified his intention of asking a rehearing at which he could withdraw his guilty plea and elect to stand trial by jury.

Ray's brother, Jerry, was quoted by the Nashville Tennessean Sunday as saying that the accused slayer was placed under financial pressure by Foreman to plead guilty and take a prison sentence.

"Foreman said he would take $150,000 if my brother pleaded guilty, but he wanted everything he would ever earn if he didn't," the Tennessean quoted Jerry Ray as saying.

In Savannah, Ga., Ray's latest lawyer, J.B. Stoner, said his Ku Klux Klan connections would help Ray's case.

"They show I'm a loyal white man and the white people of Shelby County are for white supremacy," Stoner said. Memphis, where the murder occurred, is in Shelby County.

Stoner asserted that King "brought about his own death with his activities across the country" and added:

"He was a troublemaker." Commented Robert B. James, chairman of the Memphis City Council: "He's just making a lot of trouble that we don't need. He's certainly not welcome around here when he talks like that."

State C of C Backs parochial

LANSING (AP)—The powerful Michigan State Chamber of Commerce has announced its support for state financial aid to nonpublic schools, the Michigan Catholic Conference said Sunday.

The Catholic group, which favors state aid to private and parochial schools, quoted what it said was a portion of a Chamber of Commerce legislative report.

"It is proper to use tax dollars for the education of children attending nonpublic schools," the report was quoted.

"The state of Michigan should explore the feasibility of contracting for secular educational services, materials and programs with private institutions, either profit or nonprofit, at rates established by the state and for services that can be controlled by the state, consistent with the state's ability to pay," it added.

The so-called parochial bill is pending in the House, where it was introduced by Rep. J. Robert Traxler, D-Bay City, and 34 other House members.

American group provides Oasis in wartorn Biafra

OKPUALA NGWA, Biafra (AP) — There is a place in Biafra with flowers bright as desert, cold peaches for desert, bicycle-riding at sundown and a blonde girl smiling at you with teeth that would make any orthodontist proud.

It is the home of Team 18, the American medical group in Biafra, an almost incredible oasis in a country both shriveled and bloated by war.

The Americans did not choose the two ranch houses, the dogs called Mickey and Bebe, the piano, the phonographs, the grass, the good food, the hand towels marked "At your Service", the relative safety.

Rather, they fell into it and are almost embarrassed. The set-up, which existed before the war, is a Red Cross civilian hospital on the site of a World Council of Churches mission.

The Americans who staff it—two physicians, an anesthetist and two nurses—are six-month volunteers from the Seventh-day Adventist Church. "We're living it up and we know it," said Howard Porter, 51, the anesthetist, who lives in Beltsville, Md. "I'm going to go home with a guilty feeling, even though we didn't choose this place. As I told my wife in a letter, the only thing that can bother you around here is the heat."

Porter's colleagues—Dr. Carl Lansing, 58, of San Bernardino, Calif., Dr. Albert Whiting, 40, nurse Sharon Beck, 24, and nurse Gail Wichser, 23, all of Loma Linda, Calif.—apologetically asked a visitor to tell them "about the bombings and about the war."

Whiting said: "The bunkers dug over there are in case of attack, but I've never been in one. Our patients are old men, women and children and they don't seem always to know what's going on. We only see someone with a little spirit when a government official comes through."

Now and then a Nigerian jet flies overhead, but it has always been to bomb somewhere else. Artillery can be heard at night, but the Americans are told it is more than 20 miles away. So, the days here have an aspect of routine and calm that is generally unknown in the middle of a civil war.

The crew is up at 6 a.m. to tend to patients at the hospital. They see about 200 a day. Two days a week, they hold bush clinics nearer the front. There, they sometimes see up to 1,000 Biafrans. At night there is often work in the operating room, but before that time is allotted for a little bike-riding.

Miss Wichser, a blonde with a wonderfully optimistic smile, has seen a little of the country that way. The group's conversation is laced with small talk: someone's bicycle was missing, a gate was unexpectedly locked, one of the dogs had become a fussy eater.

"We really haven't been asked to make the sacrifice we were prepared to make," said Dr. Lansing, whom the Biafrans call a "real American," perhaps because he wears a cowboy hat and bermuda shorts.

To come to Biafra, the doctor let slide what he said was a $7,000 a month practice, depending on some physician friends to fill in from time to time. Dr. Lansing's salary here is $487 a month.

"I'm taking a financial burning like Billy Blazes," he said, "but I wanted to come. I'm not a liberal thinker, in fact I'm about the biggest reactionary Roosevelt could ever have imagined. But during the war I was turned down four times at different physicals, while my brothers served, so I felt I hadn't sacrificed enough. And that's how I got here."

Sell for pin $

Q — I'm retired and would like to travel. My pension, along with dividends from 200 Standard Oil of New Jersey and 50 Maytag, takes care of my ordinary needs. I'm about to inherit the enclosed list of stocks. What shall I sell for travel money? What shall I hold and add to? — A.S.

A — Of your fine inheritance, I'd hold Anaconda, Northern Illinois Gas, AT&T and GM. These four provide good income, and in my opinion you'd do well to build up GM and AT&T to 50 shares each as cash becomes available. When the market moves up again, the sale of R.R. Donnelly, Reliance Electric & Engineering, St. Regis Paper and National Propane preferred will release the capital you want for travel. I suggest that you discuss these proposed sales with your lawyer or accountant to determine your tax liability.

National Propane is traded over-the-counter, transactions are limited and hence daily quotes are not published. The company is controlled by DWG Corp., through the latter's ownership of approximately 90 per cent of the common stock. Latest quarterly earnings are disappointing, and price action is difficult to follow. Furthermore, the conglomerates are facing possible federal investigation and a less favorable attitude by New York Stock Exchange governors toward the issue of debt securities to acquire desired companies.

Pontiac keeps quiet About radical auto

PONTIAC (AP) — Pontiac reportedly is developing a three-passenger car powered by a radically new engine, but the General Motors division is keeping a tight-lipped attitude about it.

The April issue of Popular Science Monthly reported in a copyrighted article that the engine has four cylinders arranged in a radial layout, similar to some airplane engines. The power plant is a two-stroke, air-cooled design, the type found in go-carts and lawn mowers, the article said.

The car, dubbed the "X-4" was described as "just right for running back and forth to work, but completely dissimilar to any other commuter car." The magazine said the engine was placed behind the driver but in front of the rear axle, like engines in some modern racing cars.

Production authorization "could be granted at any time," the report said. Details in the article had come from a first-hand inspection of a car plus unofficial sources, despite what were described as top secret development conditions.

A Pontiac spokesman in Detroit said he had absolutely no comment on the report.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By WORDEN E. GEER

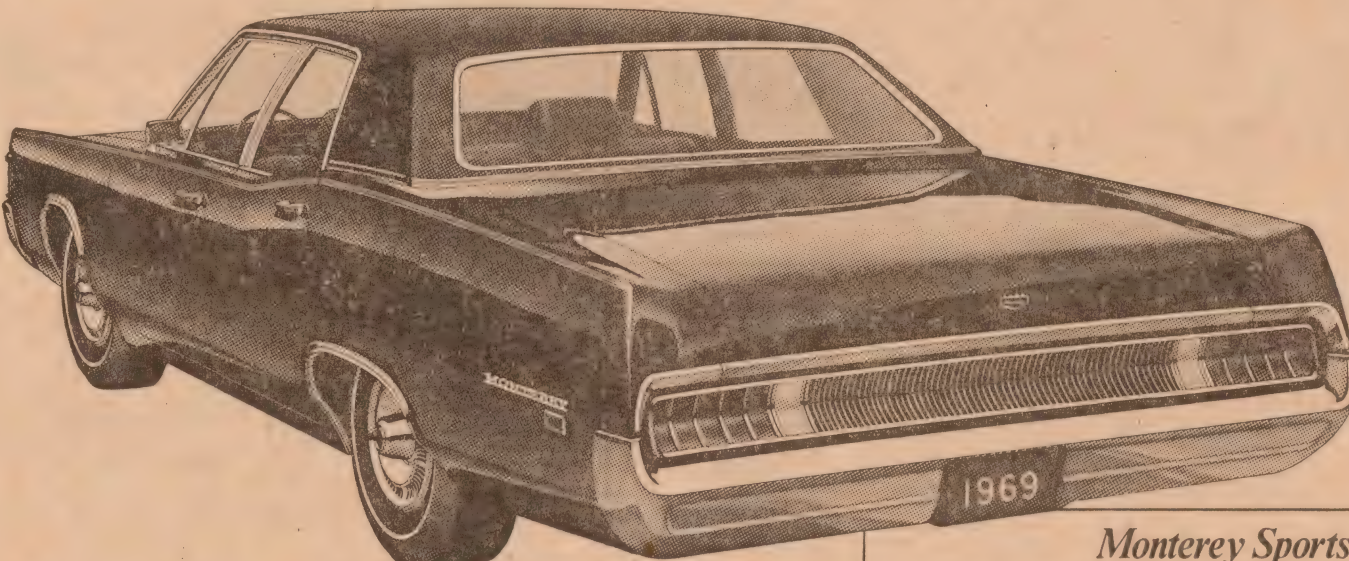

When you think about it, there is nothing mysterious or complex about "human nature". Human nature is nothing other than human habits. Human nature is therefore changeable the same as human habits are changeable. Surprisingly, human nature is often mentioned to excuse personal offenses and misbehavior. It is equally surprising that the inherent goodness in man is seldom mentioned as human nature.

The human habits of love, tolerance and respect are certainly as much of human nature as the faults of greed, distrust and other obnoxious vices. Actually, when you look around, you see far more love, trust and selflessness than hate, distrust and selfishness. In these troublesome times in human relations, it still is true that goodness exceeds the bad. And more importantly, it is good to stress that bad habits can be changed to good habits if a will to do so exists. In short, "human nature" can be changed. Just change "human habits".

Weekend mishaps On state roads Claim 19 lives

By the Associated Press

A Detroit man and his son were killed Sunday when their car rolled over six times on U.S. 23 10 miles north of Brighton, as the weekend traffic fatalities in Michigan reached 19.

The Associated Press automobile fatality count began at 6:00 p.m. Friday and ended at 12:00 midnight Sunday.

Lawrence Matras, 37, and his son Larry, 11, died when the left rear tire of the car they were riding in blew out, causing the car to roll and cross the median into oncoming traffic. Matras' wife and six other children were in the car; one of them was injured.

Other accident victims fatally injured were:

Houston Carter, 4 months, Kalamazoo, who died Sunday when the car he was riding in collided head-on with another car in Kalamazoo.

Cloyce C. Manning, 40, of near Clio, when his car ran off M57 Sunday and crashed near Clio in Genesee County.

James F. Isabelle, 23, Port Huron, who was fatally injured when his auto ran off a road Sunday and hit a tree in Maryville, St. Clair County.

Ben Wilczinski, 19, Pinconning, who was struck by a car Sunday while walking along a road near Mount Clemens in Macomb County.

John Johnson, 21, Detroit, when his car hit a roadside utility pole Saturday in Highland Park.

Richard Ver Helle, 25, Grand Haven, when his pickup truck hit a tree Saturday in Spring Lake Township.

Carl Frazier, 43, Leonard, in a three-car collision Saturday on a road east of Romeo in Oakland County.

Joel Smith, 24, Pontiac, struck by an auto Saturday while crossing U.S. 10 in Waterford Township, Oakland County.

Kenneth Abel, 24, Remus, and Stephen Marsh, 23, Wyoming, in a head-on collision of two cars Friday near Grand Rapids.

Joseph Raab, 13, and his brother Randy, 12, both of Midland, when their father's car was hit from behind Friday on M20 in Chippewa Township.

Robert W. Hackney, 16, and Robert M. Kiesgen, 17, both of Detroit, in a two-car collision Friday on the M39 freeway in Allen Park.

Carol Wilson, 18, Mount Pleasant, who was thrown from her out-of-control car, which rolled over her, Friday in Chippewa Township.

Katherine Magill, 64, Jackson, after her car was struck from behind Friday on I-94 in Jackson County.

Charles Albert Daisy, 19, of Detroit, who was injured Saturday night when a car in which he was riding struck a motel wall in Southgate.

How I avoid any trouble

By BOB CRANE
Star of TV's Hogan's Heroes

Chatting with an acquaintance recently, I happened to mention that my wife's mother makes her home with us. He looked absolutely amazed.

"You mean to tell me," he said, "that your mother-in-law lives in the same house with you? And the set-up works?"

"Sure it works," I said.

He shook his head in disbelief. "There must be a magic formula. What is it?"

"It's simple," I told him. "Just three words. Don't make waves."

Now the phrase, "Don't make waves," has different meanings to different people, but for me it has a very special significance, one that I have applied successfully to a number of difficult human situations.

Sometimes the seas of life are smooth and sometimes they're not. No matter how they are, it's pretty foolish to make them rougher. But that's exactly what a lot of us do a good deal of the time.

How do you make waves? By starting arguments. By borrowing trouble. By losing your temper. By expecting too much from other people. By judging from appearances. By always putting yourself at the center of things.

The list is practically endless! I should know. At one time or another, I've been guilty of them all!

Some people seem to be a natural-born wave-makers. Like this business of seeing everything in terms of self-reference.

Sometimes I think women are worse offenders than men. It's been said that if you ask a man, "Where did you get these lamb chops?" he'll reply, "At the supermarket." But if you put the question to a woman, she'll ask instantly, "What's wrong with them?"

Another way to make waves is to keep harping on some grievance long after it should have receded into the scrap-basket of the past.

I think parents sometimes are guilty of this with their children. The child makes a mistake or does something wrong. He's corrected, scolded, maybe even punished. But then the parents won't forget it, or let the child forget it.

A happy household is one where mistakes are recognized, corrected and then forgotten.

As every sailor knows, when one set of waves meets another set of waves, it sets up a chop — and when three sets of waves come together it can make for mighty rough sailing.

A lot of family friction, I've noticed, usually involves three points of view. And so in some situations, I've learned not to make waves — to use another nautical metaphor — by not putting my oar in.

Suppose I hear my wife telling our 16-year-old Bobby that, no, he can't go down the street this evening and study at a friend's house. My impulse, as an easy-going father, might be to say, "Oh, what's the difference? Why not let him go?"

But if I did that, I'd be undermining my wife's authority. I'd be taking sides without knowing all the facts. I'd be making waves.

Very often, I think, people who make waves are frustrated, angry, insecure, or tense. I know that in my own case it helps to have some harmless safety valve for tension.

In my dressing room I keep a set of drums. I used to be a pretty fair drummer: my idol was Gene Krupa. Now, when I feel my nerves begin to stretch (and when the rule of silence on the set isn't in effect), I like to bang out a whole medley of wild rhythms.

Spring session

The Ypsilanti Jaycees will host the spring district meeting for 10 Jaycee chapters on April 8 in order to elect a new state vice president. The session will also include the district finals for the "Speak-Up Contest."

Reservations for the dinner meeting can be made through Ken Hays of 114 Linden Ct. by next Monday.

You don't have to be a drummer to find such an outlet. You can dig in the garden, chop wood, beat some eggs, walk in the rain. You can play any game or work at any hobby that takes your mind off yourself. Nine times out of 10, when you start making waves, it's because you're thinking about nothing but yourself.

When you stop to think about it, doesn't most spiritual teaching add up to this? "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath..."

Over and over again, the Bible gives us this message. Perhaps, in the last analysis, the people who accept it are the ones with the deep inner certainties in their lives, the security and serenity that are the opposite of wavemaking.

I'm also convinced that some very important seeds were planted in my childhood through religious training. That's why my wife and I do our best to bring up our three youngsters to pray, to attend church and to seek God's help with their troubles.

Try to live your faith... and don't make waves. A simple philosophy, but it helps me every single day of my life.

Next — John Lipscomb, North Carolina well digger, tells how his faith saved him when he was buried for six hours under tons of rock.

PORT HURON (AP) — Police say 2-year-old Paul Eagle was sitting in his mother's car while she visited friends in Port Huron.

Officers said the motor was left running and the boy managed to pull the gearshift into reverse Saturday. He was thrown out of the car as it lurched backward.

A 15-year old girl saw what was happening and jumped into the car and slammed on the brakes—but not before the left front wheel rolled over Paul's face.

Doctors at a nearby hospital pronounced the lad in good condition—except for the tire mark on his face.
